GEN. POPE'S OFFICIAL REPORT.

HEADQUARTERS IN VIRGINIA, CEDAR MOUNTAIN, Aug. 13, 1862—6 P. M.

On Thursday morning the enemy crossed the Rapidan at Barnett's Ford, in heavy force, and advanced along on the road to Culpepper and Madison C. H., and attacked my whole force on the position between Culpepper and Sperryville, with a view to overwhelm us either alone, or even as the reinforcements were developed.

I had information which I supposed rendered the move on Madison Court-house very unlikely, and first to obtain information of the enemy, which I did at Sperryville, and then to concentrate my whole force at Culpepper, which I had moved forward to form part of Banks' and McDowell's corps. Brig.-Gen. Banks, with the advance of McDowell's corps, who was in the neighborhood of Culpepper, fell slowly back, delaying and embarrassing the enemy's advance as far as possible, and capturing some of his men.

The forces of Banks and Ricketts, and one of the Divisions of McDowell's Corps were rapidly concentrated at Culpepper during Friday and Friday night. Banks' advanced forward five miles south of Culpepper, with Ricketts's Division of McDowell's Corps, then close in his rear.

Sykes's Regiment of Regular Infantry, which had marched all night, was ordered to Culpepper to rest for a few hours. On Saturday the enemy advanced rapidly to Cedar Mountain, the sides of which they occupied in heavy force.

Gen. Banks was instructed to take up his position on the ground occupied by Crawford's Brigade, of the preceding evening, which had been thrown out the day previous to watch the enemy's movements. He was directed not to advance beyond that point, and, if attacked by the enemy, to defend his position, and send for reinforcements.

It was my desire to have time to give the corps of Gen. Banks all the rest possible after their forced march, and to bring forward all the forces at my disposal.

The artillery of the enemy was opened early in the afternoon, but he made no advance until nearly 4 o'clock, at which time a few skirmishers were thrown forward on each side, under cover of the heavy wood in which his force was concealed.

The enemy pushed forward a strong force in the rear of his skirmishers, and Gen. Banks advanced to the attack.

The engagement did not fairly open until after 6 o'clock, but for an hour and a half was furious and exhausting.

The enemy's fire, which at first was decidedly that directed mainly against the cavalry, I had continued to receive reports from Gen. Banks that no attack was apprehended, and that no considerable infantry force of the enemy had come forward.

The reports evincing the increase in the artillery fire having induced me an engagement might be expected, though the lateness of the hour rendered it improbable, I ordered Gen. McDowell to advance his whole command to support Gen. Banks, and directed Gen. Banks to bring his men upon the ground as soon as relieved.

I arrived personally on the field at 7 P. M., and found the action raging furiously. The infantry fire was incessant and severe.

I found Gen. Banks holding the position he took up early in the morning. His losses were heavy.

Gen. Crawford's Brigade then immediately pushed forward to the right of Gen. Banks, the 10th Maine and Gen. Geary being directed to support Gen. Crawford. Night fell and none from the enemy.

Before this change could be effected it was quite dark, though the artillery fire continued at short range without intermission.

The artillery fire at night by the Second and Fifth Maine Batteries, in Ricketts's Division, of Gen. McDowell's corps, was most destructive, as was readily observable the next morning in the dead men and horses, and broken gun-carriages of the enemy's batteries which had been advanced against it.

Our troops rested on their arms during the night in line of battle, the heavy shelling being kept up on both sides until midnight.

At daylight the next morning, the enemy fell back two miles from our front, and still higher up the mountain.

Our pickets at once advanced and occupied the ground.

The fatigue of the troops from long marches and excessive heat, made it impossible for either side to resume the action on Sunday. The men were, therefore, allowed to rest and recruit the whole day, our only active operation being of cavalry on the enemy's flank and rear.

Monday was spent in burying the dead and in getting off the wounded.

The slaughter was severe on both sides, most of the fighting being hand to hand.

The dead bodies of both armies were found mingled together in masses over the whole ground of the conflict.

The burying of the dead was not completed until night on Monday, the heat being so terrible that several days work was not possible.

On Monday night the enemy fled from the field, leaving many of his dead unburied and his wounded on the ground and along the road to Orange Court-house, as will be seen from Gen. Buford's dispatch. A cavalry and artillery force, under Gen. Buford, was immediately thrown forward in pursuit, and followed the enemy to the Rapidan, over which he passed with his rear guard, by 10 o'clock in the morning.

The behavior of Gen. Banks' corps during the action was very fine. No greater gallantry and daring could be exhibited by any troops.

I cannot speak too highly of the coolness and intrepidity of Gen. Banks himself during the whole of the engagement. He was in the front and exposed as much as any man in his command. His example was of the greatest benefit to his troops, and his merits and services receive the commendation of his Government.

Gen. Williams, Augur, Gordon, Crawford, Prince, Green and Geary behaved with conspicuous gallantry.

Auger and Geary were severely wounded, and Prince, by losing his way in the dark, while passing from the rear to center, fell into the hands of the enemy.

I desire publicly to express my appreciation of the general and official manner in which Gen. McDowell and from brought forward fresh respective commands and established them on the field, and of their cheerful and hearty cooperation with me, from beginning to end.

Brig.-Gen. Bayard, Chief of Cavalry of this army, with the advance of our forces on Friday and Saturday, and was conspicuous for his gallantry, and for the valuable aid he rendered to Gen. Banks and Crawford.

Our loss was about 1,500 killed, wounded and missing, of whom 300 were taken prisoners. As might be expected, from the character of the engagement, a very large proportion of these were killed.

The enemy's loss in killed, wounded and prisoners, we can now conclude is much in excess of our own.

A full list of casualties will be transmitted as soon as possible, together with a detailed report, in which I shall endeavor to do justice to all.

JOHN POPE, Major-General Commanding.

REPORTS FROM CULPEPPER COURT-HOUSE

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, Aug. 14.

The following dispatches have just been received from Culpepper Court-house, dated Aug. 13:

The rebels have fallen back to Gordonsville, where it is supposed they will make a stand. Our cavalry to-day entered Orange Court-house. A number of rebel prisoners, stragglers, were captured by them.

A man named Marcus Price, who was identified by some of our men as a bushwhacker, was arrested as a spy while prowling about our camps. He was sent to Gen. Sigel's headquarters, in company with other prisoners. The prisoners captured state that Jackson's force is 70,000 men. He was heavily reinforced from Richmond the day following the battle. They represent great dissatisfaction as existing among Jackson's army, owing to the scarcity of food and raiment. Eleven dead rebels were found in the woods. They were buried by our troops.

Gen. Parson, though a prisoner, was not wounded in the late battle. He was taken prisoner while leading a charge with his brigade. The rebel Gen. Winder was killed by a shell fired from Capt. McGilvary's Sixth Maine Battery. He was partaking of lunch at the time, in a house occupied by the enemy as a signaling post. The shell killed several other officers who were sitting near him. The rebels were commanded by Gens. Jackson, Hill, Stuart and Ewell.

I have sent a list of 300 killed and wounded by mail.

Gen. Pope threatens to make quick work with correspondents, if they do not stop scribbling nonsense. He told me to warn them of that fact.

The rebels are to concentrate at Gordonsville.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, Aug. 14.

Letters from Culpepper contain no news of interest. On Saturday night, after the action, Dr. Souder, of the Twenty-sixth New-York, while endeavoring to find his way to his regiment, encountered two rebel soldiers, fully armed. He sternly demanded a surrender, and they were so alarmed, apprehensive of their proximity to our forces, that they surrendered, and the doctor marched them into camp as prisoners.

ADDITIONAL ACCOUNTS OF THE BATTLE.

WAR DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, D. C., Thursday, Aug. 14, 1862.

The following has been received here from Cedar Mountain, 6 P. M., 13th:

Gen. Mirsor and Gen. Buford, with their brigades of infantry and cavalry, followed the enemy beyond the Rapidan. Gen. Jackson's baggage trains are seen in the distance, and it is said Jackson will not make a stand this side of Orange Court-house.

Thirty deserters came within our lines this morning. Nearly all of them are from Louisiana and South Carolina regiments. They tell a very pitiful tale of cruelty, starvation, and distress, and say it will be impossible to hold the Southern army together three months longer. They confirm the reports of the prisoners taken in the late battle about the number of the killed and wounded, and say our artillery fire at night was terribly destructive.

Rev. K. P. Slaughter, of Cedar Mountain, on the side at the foot of which the battle was fought, is a strong Union man, and an ardent advocate of the cause of colonization. His library was destroyed by the Rebel soldiers upon discovering among his papers letters favoring the abolition of Slavery.

Scouting parties from Gen. Mirsor's Brigade passed the Rapidan yesterday, and nearly reached Orange Court-house, where a large body of rebels remained. The bodies of rebels are constantly found in the woods and corn-fields around the battle-ground. Some of our dead nearly rendered the summit of Cedar Mountain, near where the battle was fought, and from which it takes its name.

FROM THE PRESS CORRESPONDENT.

CULPEPPER COURT-HOUSE, Va., Monday, Aug. 11—Midnight.

In an interview with some of our prisoners to-day they stated that the enemy had treated them with kindness; but one instance of gross outrage came under your correspondent's notice. It was that of Capt. O'Brien, of the Third Wisconsin Regiment, who was mortally wounded. The rebel Surgeon told him that he had no chance of living, gave him some water to drink, and left him on the field. Some rebel soldiers subsequently came up, took his watch, and cut his pocket out, containing $200, leaving him to die there. He was brought off the field under the flag of truce, but cannot survive the night. I had the statement from the dying man's lips.

The view of the battle-field was a sight never to be forgotten. It was full of horror. For nearly a mile the dead lay scattered or in heaps, many disemboweled, decapitated and mangled by shells. At the point where Crawford's Brigade twice dashed on the enemy the sight was fearful.

The rebel General, Charles Winder, was killed and Major Snowden Andrews, of Baltimore, of Gen. Ewell's Staff, mortally wounded.

The advance lines of the enemy extended nearly up to the line of our batteries on the day of the battle.

A reporter of the Press, by missing his way, got farther to the rear than laid down by the flag of truce, and was thus enabled to view the location of the enemy's forces. Their batteries, seven in number, occupy nearly the same positions as when they opened on us on Saturday. He learned that the rebel infantry were to the right of their batteries, and that a large rebel reserve was behind the mountain.

One of the rebel Generals told a Union officer he would be in Culpepper to-night, but up to the small hours of the morning he has not attempted to perform his promise.

It is now estimated that our wounded will reach twelve hundred men. Many amputations have been performed, and many have died from their wounds.

The atmosphere in the town is filled with fever and pestilence.

Most of the wounded are comfortable. Every surgeon with his assistants, are at their posts, and admirably have they performed their arduous duties. The Division of Medical Directors have managed the whole arrangement in such a manner that it is believed not a single wounded soldier has been neglected to, or left to suffer a moment longer than absolutely necessary required.

The following statistics of Gen. Williams' command on the day of the battle are the only returns obtainable to-day:

GEN. CRAWFORD'S BRIGADE.

Tenth Maine Regiment—Went into the action with two field, twenty-one line officers and two acting Lieutenants. Present to-day: Two field and twelve line officers and 256 men. Capt. Chamberlain and Lieut. Folsom are known to be killed. Capt. Adams, Capt. Nye, Lieut. Rankin and Lieut. Freeman are wounded. Fifteen men are known to be killed and 140 wounded.

Forty-sixth Pennsylvania Regiment—Col. Knipe, Maj. Mathews, Capts. Rossman, Lundmarck and Brooks, Lieuts. Schelsner, Craig and Scott, wounded; Capts. Foulke and Griffith, Lieuts. Greatrake, Wilson, Gorman, Selridge and A. Caldwell, missing. The total in killed, wounded and missing reaches 300. Every company in this regiment suffered in nearly equal proportion.

Fifth Connecticut Regiment—Wounded and probably prisoners: Col. Chapman, Lieut.-Col. Stone and Major Blake. Missing: Capt. Curtiss, Lieut. Chaney and Lieut. Doyle. Wounded: Capt. Parker, Capt. Lane, Lieut. Daniels, Lieut. Dutton, Lieut. Whitney, and Adjutant Smith.

Twenty-eighth New-York Regiment—There is no report of this regiment. It is completely broken up and has been removed from the field. The brave and noble Col. Donnelly is now breathing his last. Lieut.-Col. Brown suffered the amputation of his arm to-day.

GEN. GORDON'S BRIGADE.

Second Massachusetts Regiment—Went into action with 28 officers and 474 men. Capt. Abbot, Capt. Cary, Capt. Williams, Capt. Goodwin and Lieut. Perkins are known to be dead. One hundred and ten men are known to have been killed and wounded. Eighty are missing. Among the wounded are Lieut. Robertson, Lieut. Grafton, Lieut. Brownin and Lieut. Okey—all of whom are doing well.

Twenty-seventh Indiana Regiment—Went into action with 813 men and 18 officers. One officer was killed, 2 wounded and 1 is missing. Eleven men were killed, 39 were wounded and 21 are missing.

Third Wisconsin Regiment—Lieut.-Col. Chase and Capt. O'Brien are killed; Maj. Scott is seriously wounded. Two officers are missing. This regiment went into action with 11 officers and 456 men. It was in the hottest of the battle. Lieut.-Col. Chase was shot three times. Either of the wounds would probably have been fatal.

Cothran's Battery, attached to this brigade, lost three men.

On Saturday night, when the enemy shelled our camp, this battery fired four shots, which silenced the enemy. A Lieutenant, two men and eight horses belonging to the latter were found dead next morning.

REBEL ACCOUNTS.

The Battle Called by Them the Battle of Southwest Mountain—A Great Victory Claimed, of Course.

From the Richmond Dispatch, Aug. 12.

The prelude to the battle of Saturday evening occurred on Friday, in Culpepper County, beyond the Rapidan River, (in a skirmish between the advance of our army and a large force of the enemy. The latter retreated with some loss in killed and wounded, and twenty-one prisoners fell into our hands, including three commissioned officers, who arrived here by way of Lynchburgh, on Sunday night. The pursuit was continued for some distance, and the Yankee forces made a stand at Southwest Mountain, near Mitchell's Station, about six miles beyond the Rapidan. Slight skirmishing was kept up on Saturday morning, and in the afternoon of that day, about 4 o'clock, an attack was made upon the enemy by a portion of the division of Gen. Ewell, and a brigade under Gen. C. S. Winder. Over 300 prisoners were captured in this engagement, including thirty commissioned officers.

One of the latter admits that a Federal division was cut to pieces while endeavoring to surround the Stonewall Brigade, and the general belief is that the enemy's loss in killed and wounded is at least four times greater than ours. It was while bravely leading on the men under his command that Gen. Winder was shot through the breast and almost instantly killed. At one moment the fate of his brigade seemed in doubt, when his supports came up, and the enemy was driven back under an impetuous onset. On Saturday night the division of Gen. A. P. Hill was engaged, and the whole Federal force retreated, the pursuit being kept up for a distance of some five miles. Heavy and rapid firing was heard after midnight, and the supposition is that a battle took place immediately on the Rappahannock River, near the line of Fauquier County.

The prisoners were sent back to Gordonsville, whence they were transferred by railroad to Richmond, guarded by a detachment of the First Maryland Regiment, under Capt. Wm. Gousenbourg.

According to the statements of the prisoners, the forces under Pope amounts to 60,000 men.

From the Richmond Enquirer, Aug. 12.

The news from Jackson's army, which appeared in yesterday's issue, diffused a lively pleasure throughout our city; and well it might, for it told of a very handsome and most cheering victory, and in the right quarter! All honor to the laurel-crowned hero, and his glorious army!

Although "Stonewall" Jackson was in the front of our new lines, and notwithstanding he was never known to lose time, or to idle away a single hour, yet the amateur Generals had already begun to indulge in heavy censures at the delay. Folly, stupidity, weakness, criminal trifling, &c., were the terms that were coming freely into use, although they fell on Jackson and his foot-cavalry, whose fame fills the whole Confederacy! The result shows that Jackson had not been idle. Those preparations and plans, which are as necessary to victory, as are skill and courage in the battle itself, had to be completed. To the impatient, the time seemed to be lost; but as the plowman reaps the recompense of his toil in the harvest which follows, so Jackson is now rewarded by success.

At the time of writing this, we have not received any additional particulars of the battle of Saturday. Such as may reach us before our paper goes to press, will appear in our news column. The battle must have been a hot one, as the heavy roar of artillery was heard in this vicinity for three hours commencing at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The capture of Gen. Parsons and the other commissioned officers, will tend to bring the two warring sections to a speedy understanding as to the future policy of the war. Lincoln will either relieve the hostages we now hold, by revoking his new war policy as set forth in his own General Orders and in those of Pope, or he will respond by counter-retaliation. This will require further action on our part, and the speedy result must be the discording of all restraints on both sides, and a war of extermination. We hope, however, that our enemies are not so demented and frenzied as to have seriously resolved to force this upon us and upon themselves.

COMMUNICATIONS INTERRUPTED.

The Dispatch of the 13th has the following important paragraph, which shows that somebody has been interfering with the rebel communication between Gordonsville and Richmond:

"The city was full of rumors yesterday of a battle on Sunday, but after the most diligent inquiry we could learn nothing definite concerning it. Certain it is that heavy firing was heard in the direction of the Rappahannock, after midnight (Saturday,) and again for a brief period on Sunday morning. No mail had arrived from Gordonsville up to a late hour last night, and no intelligence had been received at the War office to confirm the rumors so industriously circulated throughout the day.

"The enemy had 6,000 troops engaged in the battle on Saturday afternoon."

The following is from the Enquirer of the same date:

"Accident to the telegraphic wires on yesterday prevents us from giving our readers any satisfactory information from the seat of the army above Gordonsville. At an early hour in the day the train from Gordonsville to Richmond, on Lynchburgh, became disabled, and the only report was that in the day time, the operator at Gordonsville, fearful of interruption by Yankee cavalry, sent an order to the train, declining to proceed further, unless ordered through that medium. Soon after this the direct line itself became disordered, and nothing more was heard up to last night from that quarter. The only intelligence which was received, at all by telegraph during the day was that if the movements then in progress were very important. It was owing to the fact that the operator on the direct line declined to proceed to without information until certain that the line was clear."

ARRIVAL OF PRISONERS FROM GORDONSVILLE.

From the Enquirer, 12th.

The prisoners taken at the battle of Southwestern Mountain, twenty miles northwest of Gordonsville, by Gen. Jackson, on Saturday, three hundred and three in number, reached the city at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. They were closely under guard of a commissioned officer, in cattle-boxes having been reserved for the purpose of hauling fresh troops. They were privately under Gen. H. Prince was permitted to take up lodgings in the Exchange Hotel, and the remaining officers were locked up with the men in the Libby Prison. The following is a list of the commissioned officers:

Brig.-Gen. R. Prince, United States Army.
Col. George D. Chapman, 5th Connecticut.
Maj. B. W. Cooke, 20th New-York.
Capt. G. B. Halstead, Adj.-Gen. of Augur's Division.
Capt. W. D. Wilkins, Asst.-Adj.-Gen. of Williams' Division.
Capt. H. S. Russell, Co. H, 24 Massachusetts.
Capt. J. H. Vandermen, Co. E, 66th Ohio.
Capt. P. Griffith, Co. A, 46th Pennsylvania.
Capt. E. A. Bowen, Co. D, 28th New-York.
First Lieut. S. J. Whitney, 24 Wisconsin.
First Lieut. H. N. Greatrake, Co. K, 46th Penn.
First Lieut. M. P. Whitney, Co. B, 5th Connecticut.
First Lieut. H. C. Egbert, Co. G, 13th U. S. Inf.
First Lieut. G. A. Calvary, Co. D, 5th Connecticut.
First Lieut. T. B. Gorman, Co. H, 46th Penn.
First Lieut. W. H. Lamyen, Co. G, 28th N. Y.
First Lieut. J. D. Redelsney, Co. D, 10th Maine.
Second Lieut. Venia Moore, 109th Pennsylvania.
Second Lieut. Chas. Snyder, Co. D, 5th U. S. Inf.
Second Lieut. J. D. Woods, Co. F, 28th N. Y.
Second Lieut. A. W. Selfridge, Co. H, 46th Penn.
Second Lieut. Otis Fisher, Co. E, 5th U. S. Infantry.
Second Lieut. Wm. H. Green, Co. A, 102d N. Y.
Second Lieut. H. Walker, Co. I, 2d Maryland.
Second Lieut. J. D. Ames, Co. E, 28th New-York.
Second Lieut. Chas. Doyle, Co. D, 5th Connecticut.
Second Lieut. Wm. McAllister, Co. H, 28th N. Y.
Second Lieut. J. Long, Co. A, 20th New-York.

With regard to the treatment of these officers, the Dispatch has the following:

"We understand that the officers of Pope's command, lately taken prisoners by Stonewall Jackson, professed never to have heard of President Davis's late proclamation with reference to the commissioned brigands of that army, and declared that they had supposed they were engaged in a civilized warfare! This is the coolest thing of the season. A civilized warfare! They burn down our houses, destroy our property, insult our women, arm the contrabands against us, hang and shoot our patriotic guerrillas, throw whole communities of peaceful citizens into jail to be gibbeted in case our guerrillas kill any more of their hands of cut-throats and robbers, and consider all this a civilized mode of warfare. If it only when the same kind of civilization is applied to themselves that they discover their mistake. The truth is, we have borne those terrible outrages so long and so quietly that our moderation and forbearance have been attributed to fear, and to an inward conviction that we are wrong-doers, and deserve all the punishment we are receiving at Yankee hands. They will now discover their mistake. An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth, and a life for a life, will be henceforth meted out to these robbers and murderers with the most scrupulous accuracy. It is true that ten thousand lives of such depraved wretches could not atone for the life of one pure, high-minded patriot; but as each of them values his existence as highly as an honest man, the wholesome lesson of retribution will not be without its influence. All the atrocities and horrors that may characterize the war hereafter rest upon the heads of the invaders, who have inaugurated the system of hanging prisoners, and who have manifested in their whole conduct of the war a degree of inhumanity and perfidy which has shocked the moral sense of the world.

"We trust most devoutly that Old Stonewall may succeed in capturing the arch fiend and savage, Pope himself. If he were not as fleet of foot as black in heart, we might anticipate a luxury compared with which the capture of a thousand other Yankee Generals would be dull and insipid. Pope and Buzzard! If those two precious miscreants could only fall into Southern hands!

"An officer who accompanied to this city the soldiers of Pope's command who were captured in the skirmish on Friday, says that he inquired of one of the Yankee officers of the party whether he had read the proclamation of President Davis and the order of the Adjutant-General with reference to the treatment they were to receive. They promptly replied that their business was to obey orders, and not read the proclamations of Jeff. Davis.

From the Enquirer, 12th.

Brig.-Gen. R. Prince had the honor of an interview with Gen. Winder yesterday, who informed him that as soon as arrangements could be made, he should have more appropriate accommodations than he had enjoyed at the Exchange.

Gen. Prince was inclined to remonstrate when the idea of a dungeon was suggested; but a decisive allusion to the Pope programme ultimately succeeded in quieting, if it did not confound the Sepoy General.

We find, also, the following paragraph in the Enquirer:

"The officers who arrived on yesterday, from Gordonsville, twenty-eight in number, and who were captured by Gen. Jackson on Saturday, will not be considered prisoners of war, so long as the recent offensive and uncivilized orders of Gen. Pope remain unrepealed. They have all, Gen. Prince included, been placed in the Libby Prison, and will, in a few days, be separately confined, to be treated, and finally punished as felons, should the brute Government of the North persist in claiming the right to murder and pillage."

WHO GEN. PRINCE IS.

This officer, who was captured by our forces in the fight at Southwestern Mountain, on Saturday last, is an officer of the old United States army. In the Mexican war he acted as Adjutant-General of the brigade commanded by Gen. Gerrling Price, whose confidence and esteem he possessed. When the present war broke out, Prince was a Captain of dragoons at Fort Leavenworth, and afterward became commandant of that post. In his intercourse with the people of Missouri and Kansas, he has reputed to have acted with gentlemanly courtesy, and had the respect of those who opposed the policy of his Government. Such was his leniency toward the Confederates in Missouri, that he incurred the suspicion and ill-will of such tyrants as Stone, Lane, &c. These facts we obtain from an officer connected with Gen. Price's Staff during his celebrated Missouri campaign.

THE REBEL GENERAL WINDER.

Brig.-Gen. Charles S. Winder, who was killed in the battle of Southwest Mountain on Saturday, was a nephew of Brig.-Gen. Winder, Military Commandant of this District. He was promoted from a Colonelcy a few months ago, for distinguished conduct, and was one among the most meritorious young officers, we learn, in the Confederate army.

Arrival of the Arago from Port Royal.

The United States transport Arago, Henry A. Gardner commanding, from Port Royal, S. C., 8:15 P. M., Aug. 10, with passengers, mails and ammunition, consigned to Col. D. D. Tompkins, Assistant United States Quartermaster-General, arrived yesterday morning.

The Arago has 65 first, and 90 second-class passengers. Among the latter there are 33 prisoners, escorted by a guard of 12 men, in charge of Col. J. D. Fessenden.

Her cargo consists of 2,495 boxes cartridges, consigned to Maj. R. H. K. Whittle, Governor's Island.

The Arago brought in tow from Hilton Head to New-York the United States steam corvette Crusader (engines disabled.)

Died on board Aug. 12, James Brady, waiter; Aug. 14, Rufus Barnard, of Orville, Ashtabula County, Ohio, late a clerk in the Chief Quartermaster's office at Hilton Head.

At 5½ A. M. Tuesday, Aug. 12, passed steamship McClellan towing ship Pionier hence for Port Royal.

At 10 A. M., Wednesday, Aug. 13, passed steamship Ericsson, bound South.

There was nothing new at Port Royal. The health of troops remained good. The rebel ram which was expected down the Savannah River had not made her appearance. Gen. Hunter and Commodore Dupont had made all necessary arrangements for her capture.

We are indebted to Purser Grafflin for prompt delivery of news packages.

IMPORTANT FROM HILTON HEAD.

Dashing Attempt to Run the Blockade at Savannah—A Visit to the Prize—Gallantry of Commodore Dupont and his Squadron, etc., etc.

From Our Own Correspondent.

HILTON HEAD, S. C., Friday, Aug. 8, 1862.

A dashing attempt to run the blockade of the Savannah River, with a valuable cargo, projected with special regard to rebel wants, was made last Monday night, the 4th ultimo, by the British steam schooner Leonora, of Hull, but a well-aimed shot from one of our heavy guns on Tybee struck her on her starboard quarter, just above our water line, and made her leak like a sieve. The next day the authorities followed in command pursued his way into Gardner Sound, a few miles southward of the Savannah, running to foul a shallow coast and dusky passage up the Ogeechee River in the vicinity, where he could discharge and send his goods without difficulty to the expectant consignees. Circumstances, however, were against him. He felt into a snare. He had never conjured on Sunday Mountain, and he stranded promptly under the guns of the gunboat Unadilla, Capt. Gerrish, which was posted at a point commanding the entrances of both the Ogeechee and Vernon Rivers, waiting with spider-like patience any stray fly of the Lucifer's species.

Let us congratulate the Unadilla's officers and crew on their good fortune. As a successful enterprise, and not of secession prizes, the prize and cargo are worth $[illegible], only one-half of which will go into the orders of Uncle Sam. Brandies of the best brands, sparkling claret, genuine gin with Holland labels, dry goods and gentlemen's ready-made garments, hats and shoes, with one item of 5,000 ounces of quinine—more valuable than all the rest to the Medical Department of the rebel army—compose the main part of the merchandise, and some say that a few thousand dollars are also to be found on board. This latter question the officers of the ship deny the truth of.

The prize was brought into Port Royal on Tuesday, and was dispatched hence by Commodore Dupont, under command of Acting-Master Gerry, of the Unadilla, for Philadelphia, where she will be condemned.

I visited the vessel, and found her Captain, a jolly Englishman—a dare-devil sort of fellow, who, I scarcely think, would hesitate at any risk in affording aid and comfort for cash to his rebel customers, and who certainly bore his misfortune with a philosophical composure which was admirable. He was quite cordial and talkative, facetiously endeavoring to convey an impression that he was bound on a legitimate voyage, but having lost his reckoning, found himself at the place where he was captured. The Ledona left Falmouth, England, early in June, with a clearance for Tampico, and having a license from our Consul at Hull to visit Port Royal for the purpose of disposing of his goods. Of course, this license was intended as a blind should any of our blockaders chance to meet the vessel prowling along the coast; but it would have proved a blind of such a flimsy sort that the least penetrating eye must have seen through it. Stopping at Bermuda for coals, the Ledona remained some weeks without being able to obtain them, there being none in private hands upon the islands, and she was eventually compelled to leave for Nassau, using the wood of a wrecked vessel for fuel. Having received coals at Nassau, she started late in July for Savannah, her captain being weak enough to suppose that he could pass the batteries at Tybee and Fort Pulaski. I have told of his failure, and I may as well say, for the benefit of other rash Englishmen, that Capt. Lucken advises them not to follow his example. He said that the shots fired at him from the Tybee battery were all in line, and he is profuse in his compliments of our gunnery. The third shot—a large rifle projectile—passed through the iron side of the vessel, three-quarters of an inch in thickness, crashing through his cabin, splintering the woodwork, tearing a hole three feet long in an iron bulkhead, making match timber of state-room doors, striking the vessel on the opposite side, and rebounding with a thud upon the floor. I doubt if any one shot ever did greater damage to a vessel's interior arrangements. In spite of this gentle reprimand, Capt. Lucken said that he should have continued his course up the river had not his vessel struck the bar, the water on which is shallower than the charts affirm it to be—probably the result of the obstructions which were placed upon it by the Savannahians in the early part of the rebellion.

The supercargo of the Ledona is a Mr. Prince, who had the gay audacity to request Admiral Dupont's consent to remain at Port Royal to look after another steamer—the Peterhoff—having a more valuable cargo, of which he is also supercargo, and which he significantly said may soon be expected at Port Royal. His services not being considered available for such a purpose, there is no probability that he will be allowed to remain.

Admiral Dupont bears his new title well. He is just as affable, just as genial, just as much beloved as when he was a Commodore. In fact there is no change in him, and really, if the newspapers had not announced his promotion to the supreme naval grade, I doubt whether anybody would believe such to be the fact. The official notification of his preferment he has not yet received. May he long live to wear his well-deserved honors. His conduct of the blockade of the extensive line of coast, covered by the fleet of the South Atlantic Squadron, has been marked by great ability and most unquestioned success. True, here and there a small-sized vessel has sneaked through our lines, but superhuman vigilance could not have prevented that.

In comparison with this blockade, all others heretofore have been insignificant and easy. Let me enumerate the points at each of which the blockade might be broken and goods conveyed to the railroad which runs through the States of Florida, Georgia and South Carolina. Commencing at Georgetown, S. C., the northernmost port which Admiral Dupont's cruisers keep sealed, we next have Bull's Bay, then Charleston, and afterward Stono Inlet, and Edisto and St. Helena Sounds. Port Royal is the next point, and then comes, to the southward, Calibogue, Tybee, Warsaw, Ossabaw, Doboy and Sapone Sounds and Brunswick Bay, in Georgia; and the ports of Fernandina, Cumberland, St. Simon's, St. Augustine and others in Florida. All these ports and inlets are practically covered at the cost of untold anxiety and literally sleepless vigilance on the part of Admiral Dupont and the officers and seamen of his command.

And the horrors of the blockading service, I am satisfied, are not fully understood by any except those who are engaged in it. Take the port of Charleston, for instance, where we have twelve vessels stationed. Isolated from the rest of the world, dependent upon a chance vessel for news, getting fresh provisions but once a month, looking each day upon the same dreary coast which the eyes had turned from in disgust the day before, experiencing all manner of personal discomforts, exercising a constant care to escape being run down or fired into by a friend, and to prevent a foe's escape—take these reasons, and add incidentally to them, and say conscientiously that the life on blockade duty is not the most monotonous and intolerable which humanity may be called to endure, and you are more than moral. MISCELLANEOUS INTELLIGENCE.

We have received copies of the Memphis, Mobile and Richmond Dispatches of the 12th, from which, in addition to the extracts printed in those papers, we take the following items of news:

THE BATTLE OF TASKHORNE.

MOBILE, Aug. 11.—A special dispatch to the Advertiser and Register, from Knoxville, says:—"The casualties in the battle of Tuesday are reported at 50 killed and 200 wounded. Our loss is 3 killed and 25 wounded, principally upon Vaughan's Third Tennessee, which was flanked heavily."

Gen. Parsons arrived here Wednesday. Colonel Grof of the Second Kentucky Regiment, Tennessee, left Rock Island, Tenn., and came early in June. Deserters from the Federal army are constantly taking place. The Federals have no regular force in Middle Tennessee. Both Knoxville and Chattanooga are strongly fortified. Harrisburgh and McMinnville are strongly fortified."

A SHORT WAY HOME AGAIN FOR LIBERATED COLORED RECRUITS.

From the Dispatch.

Our enemies have lamed the last of those among them who were willing to fight on the side of the South. At first they all supposed that it would be a very easy task to wage war on us; and there was a considerable number of volunteers for the purpose, strongly to be obtained.

These volunteers have traveled every the length of their vacant places, and so great has been the demand for the invading army. For this purpose [illegible] have been called; but they have not proved [illegible] authority and the Slaves, and the white [illegible] and wealthy [illegible] proved, with their [illegible] large sum to those who [illegible] to be [illegible] is left now but the draft. This has been discussed upon; and are now proclamations have been [illegible] throughout every Northern State, or duty [illegible] which has become hopeless, and in [illegible] sent [illegible] and to forget them, to [illegible] laudable sentiment.

Of the men thus drafted, most of them will [illegible] the pecuniary ability will doubtless [illegible] taxes. Of the three hundred thousand [illegible] take advantage of the offer to [illegible] though we estimate it at [illegible] be, that [illegible] drafted will be high. The [illegible] and the money paid, most of the [illegible] sort at the first opportunity, for [illegible] will have no further use for the [illegible] in Confederate experience, to [illegible]

We have [illegible] discovered a practical [illegible] be disarmed of its terrors to the [illegible] By the cartel for the exchange of prisoners, [illegible] are entitled to a parole within ten days after they are taken. Returning home, they are not allowed to perform military duty of any sort. They then are at liberty to follow their pursuits [illegible] at the same time their enlistment entitles them to soldier's pay.

A shrewd Yankee perceives in this a most desirable condition of things. At home with his family, attending to his private business—getting a living from Government—free from all duties and [illegible] allowed to bear arms—in condition to boast his patriotism because not at liberty to volunteer—what [illegible] man be better suited who wished to enjoy the [illegible] escape the reproach?

And to a Yankee captive there would be the [illegible] of permanency as the crowning feature of his [illegible] fortune. The Confederate Government [illegible] balance in its favor in pending the exchange of prisoners. If a Confederate is captured, he will be quickly released. But there is no [illegible] paroled Yankees, whose freedom [illegible] purchase until he shall have captured as many thousands of Confederates. To a new country all on the existing list would stand as a sort of [illegible] The fortune of war seems, too, to be in favor of the Confederates, and they are constantly adding to the number of unexchanged Federals.

When Lincoln's drafted men—his unwilling [illegible]—the men who have "no stomach for the fight," and no interest to urge them—come down to the ranks, they have, therefore, two courses before them. One is to fight ferociously, and thus to be killed or mangled. The other is to take the first opportunity to surrender as captives; and, thereafter, to [illegible] rebel, pen, home, and there dwell in peace, [illegible] all war's alarms, and unmoved by the Generals [illegible] Conscious that they are fighting in a bad and [illegible] cause, and that they can win no glory, it will [illegible] strange if thousands and tens of thousands of Lincoln's soldiers, old and new, shall be wishing to [illegible] home by way of Richmond or Vicksburgh. FEDERAL GUNBOATS AT WEST POINT.

From the Dispatch.

We learn that three Federal gunboats came up York River to West Point on Sunday morning last, and after remaining there a while took their departure. On the same day the Yankees were visiting at Carr's farm, in King and Queen County. The object of these movements is a matter of [illegible] though it is possible that troops are passing by the route from McClellan's army to the Rappahannock.

ALLEGED ATROCITIES OF NATIONAL TROOPS.

From the Dispatch.

An intelligent negro, who has been within the lines of the enemy on the Peninsula, gives a most horrible account of the atrocities perpetrated by the Hessians in Williamsburgh and elsewhere upon defenseless citizens. He mentions one case in which, under the circumstances of the murder of one of the most prominent citizens (whose name has been given us) was entirely disrobed, and then whipped by some white men of his acquaintance. Her alleged offence was the expression of some "rebel" sentiments that offended the sensitive organs. Such are the outrages that have been inaugurated since the victories of the Southern Confederacy commenced! This is their revenge for a fair defeat in an open field!

The negro who brings this intelligence was held by his master, a member of the Twenty-[illegible] Mississippi Regiment, when our army retired from Williamsburgh, being sick at the time. As soon as he had recovered, and had worked long enough to repay those who took care of him, he found means of getting through the Yankee lines, though he several times narrowly escaped capture. GEN. HOOKER'S DIVISION.

Lieut. W. E. Farwell, of the Massachusetts Eleventh, Drummed Out of Camp upon a False Charge of Cowardice—Indignation of the Men—The Troops on the Alert.

From Our Own Correspondent.

HARRISON'S LANDING, VA., Friday, Aug. 8, 1862.

Ill reports travel fast, and, doubtless, ere this reaches you, the name of an officer, who has sustained throughout the bloody scenes of this Peninsular campaign a reputation for bravery, will have been disgraced far and wide. I allude to Lieut. WM. E. FARWELL, of the Eleventh Massachusetts Regiment, First Brigade, Hooker's Division, who was this morning drummed through the ranks of that command, in punishment of a charge of desertion. The surprise of the troops, who were at an early hour paraded, was universal. No intimation of the proceedings was given to any one, and it was not until the large column was formed, and the "Rogue's March" struck up, that the brigade knew of his disgrace. The officer made his appearance on the ground, under guard, fully dressed with his bayonet on rest, and a large board upon his back, upon which was inscribed, "Lieut. WILLIAM E. FARWELL, deserted his regiment while marching to meet the enemy."

The circumstances which led to this unpleasant exhibition, although reflecting unfavorably upon the performance of his military obligations faithfully, can, in the minds of a majority of our highest military executives, in no wise be construed into so flagrant a character as to warrant strictly the extraordinary and severe measures prosecuted against the offender.

It was advertised on the pinward that he had deserted his regiment while marching to meet the enemy. Can this construction be fairly put upon the true circumstances of the case? Lieut. FARWELL was, at the time he is alleged to have committed his offence, (which was on the occasion of the late affair at Malvern Hill,) absent from the division encampment, to which he did not return until too late to join his regiment, and was until then ignorant that a movement had been made. He expressed a willingness and desire to join his company, but the troops were far in the advance, probably at or near their place of attack, and the roads were closed against every one by the rear guard. None were allowed to pass.

This is the immediate cause of punishment, but anterior circumstances have doubtless had important weight with Gen. GRIFFIN in inflicting the severe penalty meted out. Lieut. FARWELL had tendered his resignation, assigning reasons not characterized with strong discretion, and which probably gave offence, aside from the sentiment his document presented. He claimed that the service had become disgusting to him, and that he no longer could maintain his interest in the war, and whatever duty he further performed would be done with reluctance. His previous application for a furlough, and a subsequent resignation of office, had been returned disapproved. Then, in a thoughtless moment, followed the resignation, couched in the above tenor. The sentiment thus strongly expressed, produced an unfavorable effect upon his Generals, and the resolution was formed by his Brigadier to place him in disgrace, and to carry out the punishment without the customary Court-martial deeming the cause sufficient to warrant so irregular and summary a proceeding.

But to the scene. A bewildered feeling dominated the senses of the troops as the strange and rare spectacle of an officer's being drummed through the ranks, moved before their eyes, and not a murmur of pity, indignation or satisfaction broke the stillness of the occasion. Every faculty seemed paralyzed, and complete amazement grasped all thought and nerve as with a grip of iron. All gazed with senseless and stupified eyes upon the scene. But when it was over—when the sad pageant had passed away—the pride of the soldier awoke within the lines. The facts of the case spread like electricity through the ranks, and tears of pity, murmurs of indignation, and open imprecations against the leaders of this unparalleled proceeding, as they termed it, aroused the senses of every soldier on the field. A universal feeling of sympathy pervaded the mass, and but the sentiment of strongest condemnation actuated their thoughts as they marched to quarters.

The result of this strong measure cannot be easily foreseen; but at present the indignation of the entire brigade is aroused, and has already extended to other commands in the division. Had such a proceeding been anticipated or announced, it is very doubtful if a single officer or soldier would have witnessed the disgrace. If intended as an example, it has entirely failed of beneficial effect. In face of the facts, it is boldly denounced as unwarrantable, tyrannical and a disgrace upon the service as well as upon an officer who has, upon every occasion, served his country nobly, faithfully and bravely. Not a whisper of doubt against his courage and bravery can be raised, and although facilitly disgraced, he still remains a pattern of the true soldier in the hearts of his brigade. With them he is injured rather than disgraced, and his military reputation is all the more exalted and appreciated.

The truth of the whole matter is, the brigade feels the disgrace more—tenfold more—than the gallant soldier selected for punishment. It was this brigade that kept at bay the enemy on the Lower Potomac, through the storms of last Winter. His footmarks are palpable still, hedged in by the soil furrowed up by the missiles of death, and no officer was braver there. It was this brigade that first met the battle-shock at Williamsburgh, and in the hot-air breastwork that flung back the assaults of the foe beat no braver heart than his. At Fair Oaks, Savage's Station, Malvern Hill, and all along the terrible retreat to James River, he was there, brave and fearless as the bravest, although ill and unfit for duty. And even in the shadows of this, to him, eventful morning, he marched disgraced, but lion-hearted, along the lines of his old brigade, manfully braving that humiliation which, more than death, the soldier dreads.

There is one circumstance which creates a doubt whether Lieut. FARWELL is really the officer intended to be thus ignominiously punished. It is this, Gen. GRIFFIN, in conversation with an officer, remarked that the conduct of the Lieutenant would have been more excusable had he not once been Court-martialed for a like offence (cowardice.) Now, it is a fact established by the affirmation of every officer in his regiment, that no such charge has ever been made against him, and that his conduct has never been questioned upon such grounds, but another, bearing the same name, has. He has always been known as a cool, brave, quiet and efficient officer; and, aside from the indiscretion, or offence, contained in his letter of resignation, his record stands as fair as that of any officer in his regiment.

After marching in front of each regiment of the brigade, he was conducted to his quarters, under guard, to await further action. An effort is to be made to get a State hearing. THIS he has had none; and the surprise came upon him simultaneously with that of those who witnessed his disgrace.

Cavalrymen visiting into camp from the vicinity of Malvern Hill to-day, report the rebels at that place in force this morning. Unbroken quiet characterizes the army. All are waiting with anxiety the result of recent movements, and the new draft has increased wonderfully the buoyant anticipations of the men. The effect of the news was electric, and even those prostrate with sickness showed strong symptoms of defiance. In many instances it had a favorable effect upon their health. New life and animation sprang up everywhere, and a strong desire to have one more brush with the enemy before being reinforced, is uppermost. This is especially the feeling in Gen. HOOKER'S Division. With such a leader that hardy and enviable corps would brave heavy odds. The General is proud of his command and the reputation they enjoy and have so nobly sustained. His command is proud of him, and will follow him anywhere.

A Reconnoissance Up York River.

GEN. VAN ALEN GOES UPON A CRUISE—A VISIT TO WEST POINT—REception OF OUR PEOPLE THERE.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

YORKTOWN, Sunday, Aug. 10, 1862.

The York River of to-day presents as strong a contrast to the York River of a month ago, as New-York Harbor of 1862 to that of 1852. Now all is quiet and peaceful, as though its waters had never been howled over by screeching shot and shell, or its depths plowed by the vast fleet of the army of the Potomac; now, as we look from the commanding bluffs of old York off towards the broad Chesapeake, not an object can be seen to obstruct the view, not one sail to whiten the horizon. The grim and solemn hull of the gunboat Chocura keeps hourly watch over the waters of the river and the works of Gloucester Point, and but little transpires day or night but what the careful scrutiny of Capt. PATTERSON brings to light.

Gen. VAN ALEN, being desirous of ascertaining the situation of matters up the river, on Friday last planned a little trip with Capt. PATTERSON, of the Chocura, as far as West Point. Friday morning opened bright and beautiful; a fresh breeze from the west lightened the atmosphere, and filled all hands with new life and vigor. At 8 o'clock the Captain's gig and first cutter of the gunboat took the party, consisting of Gen. VAN ALEN, Capt. RAYNER, Provost-Marshal, and Lieut. FRAZE, Aide-de-Camp, on board the Chocura, which lay ready with steam up; the boats were soon on the "davits," when the shrill whistle of the boatswain called attention, while his melodious voice, which must have arisen from the depths of his boots, summoned all hands forward to raise anchor as the pilot takes his position and we are fairly under weigh. The look-out from aloft is seen peering in every direction with his glass, as if he would gather the rebel hoards even from the bowels of the earth, but none could be found on the right or the left and no occasion offered for awakening the echoes of the surrounding hills by the deep-mouthed tones of our 11-inch Dahlgrens or pet 20-pound rifles. Nothing of interest occurred on the way up, and the time was passed in watching the sailors at their different occupations. Here would be found a party squatted on the spotless deck deeply engaged in the mysteries of checkers; there another absorbed in dominoes; and, again, another in backgammon, while others were reading, writing, "fixing up" their clothes—but all busy and all happy. It would be hard to realize from the picture there presented that the same participants could be roused to the fury of demons, and send forth death-dealing missiles with as little thought as was given to their games. Shortly after noon anchor was dropped abreast of the West Point wharf, when the party, led by Gen. VAN ALEN and Capt. PATTERSON, and accompanied by an armed escort of the Eighth Regiment New-York Militia, disembarked at the wharf on the Mattapony, where everything looked deserted and dilapidated. But two individuals greeted our vision; they were duly hailed and invited to a conference, when the General and Capt. PATTERSON seated themselves beneath the inviting shade of some neighboring trees and gathered what news they could. The party either knew very little or too much, as nothing could be gleaned from them of the operations of the rebels; one was asked whether he was a rebel; he demanded what was meant by a rebel. Capt. PATTERSON explained, when Secesh remarked that one was bound to go with one's native State; but he had always been in favor of the Union. While this group was thus engaged, the boys took a stroll through the town, dropping into the various houses, in most of which numerous women and children were found, who generally treated the Yankees with sullen silence—but no men were there. We finally all brought up at the hotel, a substantial, capacious building, kept by Mrs. NEW. In it were domiciled some half a dozen of the fair sex, one or two of whom were well favored by Dame Nature. They informed us, during the conversation, that they were Virginia ladies, and, as they treated us in an unexceptionable manner, we had no reason to doubt their words. The pleasure of passing a few moments in the society of ladies, albeit they were inimical to our cause, detained us at the hotel for a half-hour or more, and it was time not altogether thrown away, as we learned from them that there had been no vessels trading between the Mattapony and the Pamunkey, as was reported to Capt. PATTERSON, since our fleets left the latter river. They said they had had no coffee or sugar for weeks, and they had almost forgotten the taste of salt. They do not, however, seem to know the value of good U. S. coin, as they charged fabulous prices for some vegetables, and appeared quite indifferent as to whether they sold them or not. Considering our mission accomplished, we took our departure about three o'clock, rather pleased to get once more on the water, as the sun poured down its rays with most tropical heat, throwing the mercury close to the hundreds. We had been aboard but a few minutes when everything was whistled ready for a start, and soon the gallant craft was steaming down the river at the rate of ten knots—homeward bound.

GEN. BUTLER VS. GEN. PHELPS.

The Contraband Question at New-Orleans.

The following letters, which have recently passed between Gens. BUTLER and PHELPS, disclose the progress which these officers have made in the discussion of the contraband question:

HEADQUARTERS, DEPARTMENT OF THE GULF, NEW-ORLEANS, Aug. 2, 1862.

Hon. Edwin M. Stanton, Secretary of War:

SIR: I beg leave to inclose to you copies of orders and correspondence with Gen. PHELPS upon the subject of arming and equipping the negroes.

Gen. PHELPS, without orders and without my knowledge, has organized five companies of negroes, and the first official information I had of his doings in that behalf was a requisition for arms and equipments for them.

It becomes more necessary in my judgment to employ them differently, and I thought by the means I could find employment for all, and not raise the question offensively between Gen. PHELPS and myself, until it was settled at Washington, and therefore sent the order to employ the negroes without waiting an answer to his requisition. But his letter of resignation has left me no choice but to insist that my order should be obeyed.

I submit the whole matter to the Department. I need not discuss it. Gen. SHEPLEY, who has been with me, can do it much better than I can. Mr. ROSELIUS, who I have sent by the Connecticut, can tell you more fully than it were possible to do in a dispatch what has been the effect of the course of Gen. PHELPS.

An insurrection broke out amongst the negroes a few miles up the river, which caused the women of that neighborhood to apply to an armed boat belonging to us, passing down, for aid, and the incipient revolt was stopped by informing the negroes that we should repel an attack by them upon the women and children.

All is for the determination of the Department, to which I shall give the fullest obedience. I have the honor to be your obedient servant,

BENJ. F. BUTLER, Major-General Commanding.

HEADQUARTERS, DEPARTMENT OF THE GULF, NEW-ORLEANS, July 30, 1862.

Capt. R. S. Davis, A. A. A. General:

SIR: I inclose herewith requisitions for arms, accoutrements, clothing, camp and garrison equipage, &c., for three regiments of Africans, which I propose to raise for the defence of this point. The location is swampy and unhealthy, and our men are dying at the rate of two or three a day. The Southern loyalists are willing, as I understand, to furnish their quota of the tax for the support of the war; but they should also furnish their quota of men, which they have not thus far done. An opportunity now offers of supplying the deficiency, and it is not safe to neglect opportunities in war. I think that, with the proper facilities, I could raise the three regiments proposed in a short time, without holding out any inducements or offering any pecuniary [illegible] hundred Africans, apparently free from connection, who are all willing and ready to throw their whole strength to our cause in any way that it may be put to work. They are willing to enlist in anything, rather than go back to slavery.

Society in the South seems to be in the point of dissolution, and the best way of preventing the African from becoming instrumental in a general state of anarchy is to enlist him in the cause of the Republic. If we neglect his services, any petty military chieftain, by offering him freedom, can have them for the purpose of robbery and plunder. It is for the interests of the South as well as for the North that the African should be permitted to offer his blood for the tenure of freedom. Sentiments unworthy of the man of the present day—worthy only of Celts—have prevented such an offer from being accepted. I would recommend that the cadet graduates of the present year should be sent to South Carolina and told point blank to organize and discipline our African levies, and that the more promising non-commissioned officers and privates of the army be appointed as company officers to command them. Prompt and energetic efforts to stifle dissension result probably sooner in such a terrible or speedy termination of the war and an early restoration of peace and unity than any other course which could be adopted. I have the honor to remain, Sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

J. W. PHELPS, Brigadier-General.

HEADQUARTERS, DEPARTMENT OF THE GULF, NEW-ORLEANS, July 31, 1862.

GENERAL: The General Commanding wishes you to employ the contrabands in and about your camp in cutting down all the trees, &c., between your lines and the lake, and in forming abatis according to the plan agreed upon between you and Lieut. WARREN when he visited you some time since. When wood is wanted by you is much needed in this city. For this purpose I have ordered the Quartermaster to furnish you with axes and tools for the contrabands to be qualified in. By order of Maj.-Gen. BUTLER.

R. S. DAVIS, Captain and A. A. A. G.

HEADQUARTERS, DEPARTMENT OF THE GULF, NEW-ORLEANS, July 31, 1862.

Capt. R. S. Davis, Acting Assistant Adjutant-General:

SIR: The communication from your office of the date, signed "By order Major-General BUTLER," directing me to employ the contrabands in and about my camp in cutting down all the trees between my lines and the lake, &c., has just been received. In reply, I must state that while I am willing to prepare African regiments for the defence of the Government against the enemy, I am not willing to become the mere slave-driver which you propose, having no qualifications in that way. I am, therefore, under the necessity of tendering the resignation of my commission as an officer of the army of the United States, and respectfully request a leave of absence until it is accepted, in accordance with paragraph 30, page 10, of the General Regulations. While I am writing, at 8½ o'clock P. M., a colored man is brought in by one of the pickets, who has just been wounded in the side by a charge of shot which, he says, was fired at him by one of a party of three hare hunters or guerrillas, a mile or more from our line of outposts (as stated) some distance from the camp to the lake, the party of wood-choppers which you have directed will probably need a considerable force to guard them against similar attacks.

J. W. PHELPS, Brigadier-General.

HEADQUARTERS, DEPARTMENT OF THE GULF, NEW-ORLEANS, Aug. 2, 1862.

GENERAL: By the act of Congress, as I understand it, the President of the United States alone has the authority to employ Africans in arms, as a part of the military forces of the United States.

Every law up to the time, raising volunteer or militia forces, has been opposed to their employment. The President has not as yet indicated his purpose to employ the Africans in arms.

The arms, clothing and camp equipage which I have here for the Louisiana Volunteers, are, by the letter of the Secretary of War, expressly limited to white soldiers; so that I have no authority to direct them, however much I may desire so to do.

I do not think you are empowered to organize four companies negroes, and drill them as a military organization, as I am unexpectedly informed you have done. I cannot sanction this course of action as at present advised, especially when we have need of the services of the blacks who are being shotted upon the outskirts of your camp, as you will see, by the orders for their employment sent you by the Adjutant Adjutant-General.

I will send your application to the President; but, in the meantime, you must desist from the formation of any negro military organization.

BENJ. F. BUTLER, Major-General Commdg.

Brig.-Gen. PHELPS, commanding forces at Camp Parapet.

HEADQUARTERS, DEPARTMENT OF THE GULF, NEW-ORLEANS, Aug. 2, 1862.

GENERAL: I was somewhat surprised to receive your resignation for the reason stated.

When you were put in command at Camp Parapet, I sent Lieut. WARREN, my Chief Engineer, to make a reconnoissance of the lines of Carrollton, and understand it was agreed between you and the engineer that a removal of the wood between Lake Pontchartrain and the right of your intrenchments was a necessary military precaution.

The work could not be done at that time, because of the high stage of the water and the want of men. But now both water and men concur. You have five hundred African organized into companies. You write me this work they are fitted to do. It must either be done by them or my soldiers, now drilled and disciplined. You have said the location is unhealthy to the soldiers—it is not to the negro. Is it not best that these unemployed Africans should do this labor? My attention is especially called to this matter at the present time, because there are reports of demonstration to be made on your lines by the rebels, and in my judgment, it is a matter of necessary precaution thus to clear the right of your line, so that you can receive the proper aid from the gunboats on the lake, besides preventing the enemy from having cover. To do this the negroes ought to be employed; and in so employing them I see no evidence of slave-driving, or employing you as a slave-driver.

The soldiers of the Army of the Potomac did this very thing last Summer, in front of Arlington Heights. Are the negroes any better than they? Because of an order to do this necessary thing, to protect your front, threatened by the enemy, you tender your resignation, and ask immediate leave of absence. I assure you I did not expect this, either from your courage, your patriotism or your good sense. To resign in face of an enemy has not been the highest pleasure to a soldier, especially when the reason assigned is that he is ordered to do that which a resent act of Congress has specially authorized a commander to do—i. e., employ the African to do the necessary work about a camp or upon a fortification. General, your resignation will not be accepted by me; leave of absence will not be granted, and you will see to it that my orders, thus necessary for the defence of the city, are faithfully and diligently executed, upon the responsibility that a soldier in the field owes to his superior. I will see that all proper requisitions for the food, shelter and clothing of these negroes at work are at once filled by the proper department. You will also send out a proper guard to protect the laborers against the guerrilla force, if any there may be in the neighborhood.

The United States steamer Octarodel, CHAS. H. CUSHMAN, Lieutenant Commanding, which left Fort Royal Aug. 10, arrived yesterday. She came to this port for repairs. The following is her list of officers: CHAS. H. CUSHMAN, Lieutenant Commanding; John H. H. Brinkmall, Acting Assistant Surgeon; T. McCauley Brewer, Acting Paymaster; P. D. McDougall, Acting Master; Henry B. Taylor, Paymaster's Clerk; Julius Koch, Surgeon's Steward; P. O. Brightman, Acting Third Assistant Engineer; O. W. Nelson, Henry Parsons, Albert Buhner, Acting Master's Mates.

RETURN OF HON. REVERDY JOHNSON FROM NEW-ORLEANS.—Hon. REVERDY JOHNSON arrived in Washington the evening before last. He left New-Orleans on the 30th ultimo, in the transport steamship Connecticut, Lieut.-Commanding HABEUS, and was landed at Fortress Monroe on the 8th inst. Judge ROSELIUS, of New-Orleans; Dr. COTTMAN, formerly of Maryland, and Mr. CUTHBERT BULLITT were also passengers in the Connecticut.

Mr. JOHNSON, our readers will recollect, was commissioned by the Government some weeks ago to proceed to New-Orleans, and take testimony, and report his opinion on the merits of the official acts of Gen. BUTLER in seizing certain large amounts of transports in the custody of foreign Consuls, and which Gen. B. assumed to have been evasively deposited for safety by rebel owners, and rightfully forfeited to the United States. Mr. J.'s report, we understand, will be sent in in a few days, and his decision, as far as such, it is said, as it concerned in by the Government, will remove an danger of [illegible]

THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC

OFFICIAL DETAIL

The Departure from Harrison's Landing.

The Whole of McClellan's Army Moving Down the James River---Reasons for the Movement.

From Our Own Correspondent.

HARRISON'S LANDING, VA., Monday, Aug. 11, 1862.

The anxiety of the country for the fate of the Army of the Potomac is about to be relieved. The stages which for the last two weeks have been so variously interpreted by the public, are in course of fulfilment, and a few days, perhaps hours, will place the condition of the army of the Peninsula beyond all doubt. I wish I might add—danger. Another important change is on the tapis. A movement which is rendered absolutely necessary by the situation of affairs, looking to the preservation of the army, for future use in the suppression of the rebellion, is about to take place. No one can mistake what it is. With its strength gradually but steadily being reduced by sickness, the ranks enervated by the terrible heat of the climate, which is equally fatal to the operations of either side, and with the impossibility of strengthening the situation by the addition of fresh troops, which experience has demonstrated cannot be rightly sent to this Peninsula in August, there is but one course left for the Government to pursue—but one which the country can approve, viz.: To rescue the army from its present inactive and unsatisfactory position as soon as possible, and wait the development of events.

This is now to be done, if appearances do not greatly deceive me. By the time this reaches the readers of the Times, the entire force now occupying this place will have retired voluntarily, and, it is hoped, without serious opposition, down the James River, where it can be said with truth that "the army is safe."

Like the former "change of the base of operations," this course is rendered doubly necessary for the security of the health and morals of the troops. It will involve serious risks, and will require the exercise of great skill in extricating this large army from its position. With the experience of the memorable seven days before them, it is doubtful if the rebels will pursue and "harass our rear," as they did on that occasion, for they certainly, by their own showing, got decidedly the worst of it during that series of encounters. Everything has been managed thoughtfully and with consummate skill, so far as I can judge by observation. As our safety depends upon the place depended upon keeping the movement concealed from the enemy, everything has been arranged with that view. It now appears to be the plan to send away the large portion of the troops, with the necessary artillery and transportation wagons, by land, moving them in two or three columns toward Williamsburgh, and then embark the remainder of the troops and materiel upon transports, under cover of the gunboats if we should be attacked. For the purposes of embarkation, no better position could be found on the James River. With the low and swampy region of Herring Creek protecting the rear and right of our encampments, no force could assay to wish impunity from the land side, for the gunboats can effectually keep such a force at bay there, and at the same time render it impossible for it to approach from the direction of our intrenchments at the front and right, after those works shall have been abandoned.

Ever since Friday morning our force has been gradually sent away, so as not to attract attention. On that day, early in the morning, five batteries, with the horses and men, which had been loaded during the previous night, were sent down the river, in light-draft steamers and schooners. It is believed these have been sent to near the entrance of the Chickahominy River, so as to be in readiness to move up and command the crossing of that river, perhaps at Barrett's Ford, which is the lower crossing-place should the enemy come down to dispute our passage across this celebrated stream, we should need such protection. It may be we shall divide the forces after passing Charles City Court-House, and one column take the upper road, to Cole's Ford, which is five miles above Barrett's Ford, measured on Mr. BLUNT's new chart and map, which I have found to be very correct, so far as all the places, points and reaches along the river are concerned; the distance to Williamsburgh, by the most direct of these roads, is not over twenty-five miles. By the Cole's Ford route, which takes us by the way of Chiswell to the Williamsburgh road, it is probably thirty. Thus, we must be at least two days in reaching Williamsburgh, even by a forced march, at which point the army will be "safe." If not sooner attacked and rendered otherwise. I doubt if the enemy is in any strong force on the road, or that he can learn of our movement in season to follow and attack us before we reach this narrow part of the Peninsula. It may be the purpose of Gen. McClellan to have the larger transports receive the army on board at the latter place. The rebels have several large earthworks abandoned. The main point to be guarded against, I apprehend is the south bank of the river, from which the rebels will, no doubt, give us a parting salute if they can overtake our departing transports in season to do so. Looking on all sides of the question, your correspondent is in doubt which route to take, supposing he should choose his mode of exit from this interesting spot with a view to personal safety. By the river we are very liable to be struck by the enemy's cannon, and by the road we are exposed to the possibility of a running fight. As he has heretofore exhibited some smartness at dodging, he is inclined, like the darkey, to "take to de woods."

BURNSIDE's Brigade has been on the south side of the river for five days, up to yesterday morning, watching against the advance of the enemy from Petersburgh, old Prince George Court-house. He captured a few prisoners, one of whom was a Northern man, who was glad to escape. He obtained of him some valuable information.

Gen. HARRISON MCCALL's old Division has gone across to take his place, and they will probably remain there until our transports are out of reach, and then embark themselves. It will be done probably within two days—perhaps sooner.

Yesterday was a busy Sunday. Orderlies were constantly on the move during the day, delivering messages from headquarters to the various Commanding Generals. We are to go away equipped for an eight-day march. The troops move in light searching order.

I shall carefully watch all the movements, and with your other correspondents shall be able to give you prompt and full particulars of all that happens.

6 A. M., MONDAY, Aug. 11, 1862.

P. S.—It is certain that the whole army will move. Every corps, I think, have received orders, and we are getting ready as fast as possible. Some of the largest transports are waiting down the river, not at a great distance. There are some indications that we may move off on this side of the Peninsula. There are now landing up the embankment with army wagons. The whole camp will be on the move by 3 o'clock P. M.

Under orders from the President, a salute was fired at daylight, in honor of the late President VAN BUREN, and half-hour guns will be fired through the day.

An ambulance corps is to be organized in this army upon an improved plan. This will be a great advantage in battles, and prevent so many sympathizing soldiers from assisting their comrades off the field when they are needed elsewhere.

HARRISON'S LANDING, VA., Wednesday, Aug. 13, 1862.

The movement for withdrawing the army from the James River, which began nearly a week ago, very quietly, has steadily progressed until each officer and man stands ready for the word to march. The effort to retire without the knowledge of the enemy I think has failed. The unusual massing of vessels and transports near the various landings, side by side; the industry of the small tugs moving vessels about; the accumulation of the larger transports opposite the camp, and the filling of the mail-boat for three days past with troops, to say nothing of the departure of steamers during every night for most of the past week, must have attracted attention, even if the other movements immediately upon the encampment and along the banks have not been observed from a hundred places on the opposite shore, which it has been impossible for us to occupy or guard. In a word, it must have been patent to the most casual observer that some grand enterprise was on foot. How absurd, therefore, to suppose that the ever-vigilant enemy, who has been watching us from a hundred concealed places, has not been fully aware of all we have been doing.

To cover appearances, the gunboats have been kept up toward City Point watching the enemy, and appearing as if waiting for the coming of the formidable ram from Richmond. The balloon has regularly visited the upper regions to view—either, and the surrounding country enveloped in smoke. The footing of bugles and beating of drums in the camp have been, if possible, more vociferous and defiant than ever, as much as to say, "Here we are, come if you dare." The siege guns continued, up to last evening, to show their black mouths to the enemy's pickets from the intrenchments at the front, but three of them were yesterday removed and placed on board a transport. "Quakers" have not been invented to take their places. The usual parades, reviews and guard-mountings have gone on, just as if nothing unusual was about to happen. Some of the steamers coming up the river have brought, during the last two or three days, large companies of returning convalescents and stragglers, which may aid to keep up appearances. Meantime, all the sick have been sent away, and the hospitals are now vacant—though they have a way in this climate of filling up about as fast as they are emptied. The surgeons in charge of this department have literally had their hands full. Dr. BARNES shipped 1,008 patients on board of the State of Maine, Louisiana, Knickerbocker and John Brooks—mostly light cases, of fever and diarrhœa—the men walking on board. They have been reduced and broken down by climatic and other influences. All this large number were shipped between the hours of 7 P. M. Thursday, and 10 A. M. Friday.

Dr. DUNNING, the director of the transports, arrived on the Webster, Friday evening, and immediately took up the business of getting off the sick. He sent on board of eight steamers 5,140 persons. As fast as one steamer was loaded she was sent away. The Doctor estimates the number of sick and wounded dispatched North, by different transports, at 11,000, 3,000 of whom were prisoners from City Point. These, of course, include those sent from White House before the "change of base." Yesterday, the Harrison House, and the tents immediately around it, were pretty well cleared of patients.

A considerable number of the troops have been sent from here by transports. SEDGWICK's Division, or a part of it, as well as a part of HEINTZELMAN's, have already gone—the Second Brigade of SEDGWICK's to report directly to Gen. BURNSIDE, at Aquia Creek. We shall thus have a profitable reduction in the length of our retreating column, as well as in its strength. The best that can be done, using all the transports to be had, the body of troops and material to be moved will be immense. It will form a cavalcade and train of at least sixteen or twenty miles.

Surplus tents have already been struck; regimental baggage, by the hundred tons, has been shipped, and eight days' rations ordered for each of the commands—five days to go on the transports, land and water, and three to be carried by the men.

There is apparent among officers and men a great preference for the river transports. It is so much easier to sail than to travel. And then the sun is intensely fervent, and the roads are dusty. Besides, who knows how we shall fare on the road? Will we have forage and food, and comfortable lodgings, and will the inhabitants of the land be friendly? There is a faint reminiscence that we passed through the same region once before, and did not meet a very hospitable reception. But perhaps affairs have changed for the better. I hope we shall get off all right, and get along the road without opposition. With a serious engagement on their hands at Culpepper Court-house, and the chances of plenty of employment to keep FOPE at a safe distance from Richmond, we may be permitted to step out of the back door and not get a kick down stairs as we depart.

The gunboats were engaged for an hour yesterday forenoon in shelling the woods along the banks of the James River opposite this place. It elicited no response from the enemy. It was doubtful if there was any near enough, in force, to be hit. A flag of truce early in the morning, went up toward City Point, and returned about 8 o'clock A. M. The balloon reconnoissance, made at sunrise, revealed no important change of the enemy's position. It was too smoky to see much. A cavalry reconnoissance went as far as Sandy Point on Monday, but found no enemy.

The landing of express baggage has been stopped. Transportation is now the other way. The sutlers, those "vultures of the army," as they are called, are closing out their stocks in trade, and preparing to "clear the kitchen." The lesson at White House will not be soon forgotten. Yesterday morning the mail steamer John A. Warner, hauled out into the stream to evade the rush of passengers on board before the time of departure. All passes were carefully scrutinized, and it is doubtful whether even a panic-struck reporter—supposing such an anomaly possible—could have got away without all the necessary indorsements on his pass. Mountains of knapsacks belonging to the various departing regiments, lay piled upon the bank opposite the landings. At the upper wharf men were busy all through Monday night, in pulling field and siege caissons and ammunition wagons on board of transports.

The orders to march, or what was equivalent to it, were issued Sunday. They were countermanded or the time extended, on Monday. So that while the preparations have been going steadily on, the army has been on the qui vive ever since, expecting to move every hour. Some of the batteries, it is said, have had their horses harnessed for forty-eight hours.

This morning there is enthusiastic cheering along the river. I presume the cause must be the news of POPE's rumored victory at Culpepper Court-house. A wag at my elbow suggests that it is more likely on account of an order to fall in for breakfast, or to go on board a transport. Such orders just now are more transporting than any other. The reports seem rather "mixed," it must be confessed, but the belief is very general that it will turn out to be a great victory. Gen. POPE "never sees anything but the back of the enemy."

THE FEELING IN THE ARMY.

If the move is for Washington, to protect that city, and in fact, is not a retreat at all. It is a change of base—for the consolidating of the troops. At least we believe this, and are, therefore, "content," as JOHN QUINCY ADAMS said on a memorable occasion.

The most interesting part of the history of the next few hours or days, will be the movement of the navy [illegible]

THE REBELS AS USUAL APPRISED IN ADVANCE.

The following dispatch appears in the Charleston Courier of Aug. 1:

RICHMOND, Tuesday, July 29.

The opinion gains ground here that Gen. McCLELLAN is gradually overreaching the position of Berkeley, and is reinforcing Gen. POPE with the bulk of his army. The number of Yankee transports in the James River is immense, and great activity is observable amongst them.

FORTRESS MONROE AND HARRISON'S LANDING.

A Trip to Harrison's Landing—Commodore Wilkes and Gen. Meagher—Affairs at Harrison's Landing—Returned Union Prisoners—Atrocious Conduct of the Rebels—How We Underrated Them—What They Think of McClellan.

From Our Own Correspondent.

HARRISON'S LANDING, Wednesday, Aug. 13, 1862.

The news which had been pouring into Fortress Monroe, during the last day or two, was of so conflicting and alarming a character, that I determined to run up here and judge of matters for myself. Certainly, the rush of soldiers to Old Point—the mysterious arrival and departure of large bodies of men (nobody knowing where to or for what purpose), were enough to give ample food to the lovers of rumors and sensations. The Hygeia building, when I rose yesterday morning, presented far more the appearance of a huge barrack than of either a hospital or hotel, for men were literally swarming about it, inside and outside.

We left Old Point yesterday, (Tuesday,) at a little past noon, in the John Tucker, and having on board Commodore WILKES, Gen. CROSS, and a number of other officers and privates, returning to their posts. We had scarcely started when some derangement in our rudder caused us to stop for more than a half hour, during which time we were overtaken by two or three tugboats—one of them bringing Brig-Gen. MEAGHER and his noble steed. Nothing worthy of note occurred until after we had passed Jamestown Island, and a gunboat had come alongside as an escort, when a terrible wind-storm came up—a veritable young tornado—which made our light-ballasted boat rock like a child's cradle, creating no little ado and some alarm among the landlords with which she was crowded. Commodore WILKES seemed precisely in his element. He was to be seen standing at the prow of the vessel, leaning to one side, almost at an angle of 45 degrees, to keep his footing against the wind, and with his cap off and hair streaming back, as if to inhale as much as he could of his accustomed storm. Considering who he was, the comic idea struck me that perhaps, at that moment, no other vessel in the world could boast of a more distinguished figure-head than the John Tucker.

By-the-way, speaking of Commodore WILKES, I never before had an opportunity of noticing those charming and unassuming qualities which have justly made him so popular,—qualities that shine out all the more brilliantly because of the intrinsic worth and merit of the man. He is affable and courteous to all who approach him, and, in this manner, wins the heart of everybody precisely as Gen. BURNSIDE does. These are the men who prove democracy respectable, by showing the varied difference that exists between the true and the parade or mere lip-democrat. There was a powerful contrast between the demeanor of Commodore WILKES and a younger hero on board, (of far less calibre,) in their deportment toward strangers who accosted them; the contrast was fully commented upon, and the gallant Commodore certainly stood infinitely the higher of the two in general estimation.

At Harrison's Landing I saw very many things of great importance going on, which it would be impossible for me to even touch upon without divulging what should, at present, remain unpublished. I send you, privately, this portion of my information to use as you think best under the circumstances. The only fact that I will freely and cheerfully state is that I was agreeably surprised to find such a healthy and comfortable state of our troops at Harrison's Landing, after all I had heard and read to the contrary. Whatever our brave fellows may have heard, after the desperate work of those six days before Richmond, it is certain that you cannot now find an army better fed, better cared for, braver, and in more cheerful spirits, than the Army of the Potomac, which the soldiers, to a man, insist upon still calling McCLELLAN's army. Whatever changes may be ahead, wherever they may be called on to devote their lives, they still hold a touching and unfaltering love to their young chieftain, as complimentary to him as it is creditable to themselves.

I was perfectly astonished, on approaching Harrison's Landing, to see the wonderful changes that had been effected at that spot, during the short space of only a few weeks. When I last passed this place, on my way to City Point, under a flag of truce, there was nothing whatever of interest discernible in the green monotony of the banks on either side of the James River. Here, as if by the touch of some magician, I found myself approaching a perfect forest of masts, that would scarcely discredit the harbor of Boston. I never saw anything that convinced me more thoroughly of the wonderful recuperative energies of a free republic, when once aroused into action.

Early this morning the beautiful little Ariel, Capt. JOHN DALY Commander, arrived here from Dixie, bringing with her several officers who were detained by the rebel authorities, and which naturally created such intense indignation throughout the North. I have not been able to obtain a full list, but among them were the following officers who remained at Harrison's Landing: Major-Gen. McCall, Brig.-Gen. Reynolds, Capt. Ernest Hugo Brandenstein, of Gen. Blenker's Staff; Major T. O'Neil, of Meagher's Brigade; Col. Simpson, of the Fourth New-Jersey, (Gen. McCall's Division;) Capt. Stout, Independent Company, (Gen. Shield's Division;) Lieut. Randall, Eighth Ohio, and Capt. Moore, Fourth New-Jersey. Those who have accompanied us, on board the John Tucker, are: Lieut.-Col. Wm. C. Starr, Capt. Samuel Davis, Lieut. B. F. Stivers and Lieut. James Ewing, all of the Ninth Virginia Volunteers, (Gen. Cox's Division;) Major (Baron) Puchelstein, Fourth New-York Cavalry; Dr. Beck, Assistant Surgeon; Dr. Jas. Moore, of Philadelphia, Acting Assistant Surgeon; J. L. Vernon, Independent Company, (Gen. Cox's Division,) and a Captain of the Eighth Pennsylvania, whose name, very strangely, escaped me, but for whose politeness and intelligent information I am much indebted.

The account I received from Dr. MOORE, of the manner in which our prisoners there have been treated, is most revolting; in spite of his confession that Col. GRAY, of the Forty-second North Carolina, and the officers under him, behaved like gentlemen, and did what they could, under the circumstances. At the Fair Ground of Lynchburgh, where 2,500 were, not long since, confined, five or six died every day from sheer exhaustion, through poor and insufficient food. But all they endured was as nothing compared to the torments which those fiends—the rebel leaders—are inflicting upon the officers of Gen. POPE who have fallen into their hands, some 23 of them. These poor fellows are confined in close and dark rooms, like common felons; not allowed to buy anything to mitigate their sufferings, even at the usual exorbitant rates; allowed to have no meat, nothing but an insufficient supply of bread, (sour at that,) and water poisoned with the filthy sewerage which flows into the James River; water—so says my informant—that a dog or hog would refuse! In addition to these horrors, our brave men are liable at any moment to be hanged by these monsters in human shape. If there be anything in retaliation, is it not time for the whole civilized world to cry "shame"—and bid us Godspeed in the work of crushing the source of such outrages against civilization? Could it be wondered at if the North, at length frenzied by such cruelties, should put forth its full powers of retaliation, and inflict punishment upon these creatures, from which it naturally shrinks even in mere contemplation?

My informant assures me that we have, all this time, been wofully underrating the powers of the rebels. They say that at least 100,000 men out he[illegible]

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, Aug. 14.

MILITARY MOVEMENT IN A NUTSHELL.

Secretary SEWARD stated last evening that the current stories, published in some of the papers, and generally believed here, for the last three or four days, that Gen. McCLELLAN's army had left the Peninsula, were untrue. Reasons are known here, that, independent of Mr. SEWARD's statement, lead to the same belief. What may come in the future, of course, remains uncertain. Military matters, therefore, assume a profoundly mixed-up appearance.

Occasionally have rumors of disasters to McCLELLAN's army—loss of artillery, loss of shipping, etc.—but in a very vague form, and not regarded credible.

BEFORE FROM POPE.

Reports from POPE's army continue exceedingly favorable, but the details of movements are not allowed to transpire.

RELATING TO THE DRAFT.

Gov. CURTIN arrives here late last night by express, and returned to Harrisburgh this evening. He stated that he was here by invitation of the Secretary of War. He was closeted with him for a long time at the War Department, on subjects connected with the inauguration of the system of drafting. It was decided that all the new regiments now in process of formation should be allowed until Sept. 1 to fill their ranks by volunteering. If not filled by that time, they will consolidate, and drafting will be resorted to to fill out the quota. It was also decided that volunteering to fill up the old regiments shall be permitted to continue up to the same date.

With reference to the mode of apportioning the quota for the draft upon different sections, the following highly important order was prepared.

"ORDERED, Rights—That in filling all requisitions for militia, the quota of the several States will be apportioned by the Governors among the several counties, and when practicable among the subdivisions of counties, so that allowance shall be made to such counties and subdivisions for all volunteers heretofore furnished by them, and mustered into the service of the United States, and whose stipulated term of service shall not have expired.

(Signed) "E. M. STANTON, Secretary of War."

It was further decided that no officers or privates now in the field can be permitted to leave their positions for promotions in new regiments. The attempt was made at this interview, as it has been several times before, to have meritorious soldiers discharged from present enlistments with a view of promotion, but the fact that they were now before the enemy was represented as rendering such transfers impossible.

Gov. CURTIN's visit has been specially important in eliciting these facts, and his success in procuring the order given is gratifying.

THE NEW TREASURY NOTES.

The delivery of Treasury Notes, of the denomination of one and two dollars, will be commenced on Tuesday next, though in small quantities.

MORE MONITORS.

The Navy Department has advertised for proposals for the construction and completion of vessels of iron for river and harbor defence, similar to those building in New-York, having a single revolving turret. No offer will be considered unless from parties who are fully prepared to execute work of this kind, having in their own name, at the present time, suitable shops and tools.

THE POSITION AT NEW-ORLEANS.

BEVERDY JOHNSON is understood to express the opinion that our situation on the Lower Mississippi Valley is far from secure. Nothing, of course, was known before he started from New-Orleans about the reported movements at Baton Rouge, but he would regard the rebel reports as not improbable. BUTLER needs reinforcements to make his position secure.

THE PRESIDENT AND COLONIZATION.

The President's interview with the colored delegation to-day, committed him more strongly than ever to the colonization policy as the surest solution of negro complications.

THE DELAWARE TAX LAW APPOINTMENTS.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has made the following appointments for the State of Delaware under the Tax law: JOHN P. MCLEAN, of Wilmington, Assessor, and C. H. B. DAY, of Dover, Collector.

The tax appointments progress quite slowly. Gov. BURWELL said to-day that he could not tell when New-York would be reached—perhaps not for some time. The Western appointments may be entered upon by Saturday.

HON. BEVERDY JOHNSON'S MISSION.

Hon. BEVERDY JOHNSON is engaged in preparing his report on his mission to New-Orleans. Nothing has transpired concerning his conclusions on the subject, but it seems to be understood that, while perhaps making some concessions by way of appeasing the Foreign Consuls and their Governments, he will substantially sustain BUTLER throughout.

OFFICERS DISMISSED AND CASHIERED.

By direction of the President, Major E. Z. LAWRENCE, Sixty-first Regiment, New-York Volunteers, is dismissed from the service.

In accordance with the sentence of a Court-Martial, held at camp near Harrison's Landing, Lieuts. FRANK C. GOODRICH, GEORGE A. ROWLEY, CHARLES R. NOGGLE and F. S. WEIGEL, of the regular army, have been cashiered for misbehavior before the enemy, and Capt. CARNEY, of the Twelfth United States Infantry, for drunkenness on duty.

Lieut. JOHN G. REAGEY, Fifty-fifth Regiment New-York Volunteers, for disobedience of orders has been dismissed from the service.

All these sentences were confirmed by Gen. McCLELLAN.

APPOINTED MINISTER TO ROME.

The President has appointed R. M. BLATCHFORD, of New-York, to be Minister Resident at Rome, vice ALEX. M. RANDALL, late Governor of Wisconsin, who has been recalled at his own request with a view to his entering the military service of the United States.

GOV. SPRAGUE.

Gov. SPRAGUE and a large number of Rhode Island[illegible] are here.

FROM CANADA.

Death of the Hon. H. McNab—Political and Commercial Movements.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE NEW-YORK TIMES.

HAMILTON, C. W., Monday, Aug. 11, 1862.

Lest the New-York TIMES should not have published any notice of the death of Sir ALLAN NAPIER MCNAB, I pen you these few lines.

He was born in 1798, at Niagara, and in 1812 he served against the Americans, who then invaded Canada. When they took Toronto, he retired with the British troops under SHEAFFE, toward Kingston, and was there transferred to a subordinate command in the so-called "Navy," on Lake Ontario. When the war ended, he studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1822. In the rebellion of 1837 he took a prominent part on the Royal side, rallying around him the men of Gore, (the district in which Hamilton, his residence, was situated,) and proceeding with them to Toronto, to the assistance of the Governor, and then to the Niagara frontier, where he besieged W. L. MACKENZIE (who died last year) on Navy Island, and among other exploits cut out the Caroline and sent her, burning, over Niagara Falls. You must of course remember the difficulties which all this kicked up. For his services in the rebellion he was knighted. He subsequently became Honorary Colonel in the British Army, Aide-de-Camp to the Queen. He was long a member of the Lower House of the Canadian Parliament, having been first elected in 1836. In 1854 he became Premier. In 1857 he resigned, and shortly afterward went to England, returning, he was elected to our Upper House, of which he was chosen Speaker but a few months ago. He was always liable to gout in the legs and stomach, and this, added by gastric fever, put an end to his career at Dundurn Castle, Hamilton, on the 6th inst.

Sir ALLAN was always popular with the people. His ready wit and good-tempered familiarity pleased them all. Yet he was always careful never to sacrifice himself for them, or even for any of his friends. He kept a sharp eye to his own interest throughout his whole career, and his very loyalty was always so timed as to bring pecuniary rewards along with it. He married twice, and leaves two daughters only, one married to Viscount BURY, M. P., and the other to a son of Sir DOMINIC DALY, Governor of South Australia. He had a son, who was shot by accident, when only 17 years of age. I suppose Sir ALLAN'S name is better known abroad than that of any other Canadian, principally because of the honors of which he has at various times been made the recipient; and these again were chiefly the result of his aristocratic connections; for, save that he made himself conspicuous in 1837, he never did anything very noteworthy, except, perhaps, the introduction of a militia bill into the Canadian Legislature, and that was drawn up for him by Hon. Mr. MACDONALD, of Kingston. But let us not say ought injurious to his memory now that he is dead, though while living, I always thought him a greatly over-estimated man.

It will please some of your New-York readers to learn that their friend, Hon. H. BLACK, Judge of the Vice-Admiralty Court at Quebec, has been made a C. B. by Her Most Gracious Majesty. In the same list with him appears another Canadian, Hon. P. HINCKS, Vice-Premier of Canada, then Governor of Bermuda, now Governor of British Guiana.

Political movements here are becoming interesting. You may remember that the last thing memorable in this respect was the defeat of the Militia Bill, under which the Cartier-Macdonald Administration proposed to raise 100,000 militia here. They were succeeded by a Ministry under Hon. J. S. MACDONALD, who introduced a milder measure for raising about 50,000 only. This Ministry have had a good deal to do of late in the way of retrenching the public expenditure. They have dismissed a good many useless public servants, beginning with the Postmaster here, and though, perhaps, they may be going a little too far in this direction, it is said they have saved the country $400,000 a year. Hon. Judge BROWN, however, is not satisfied with them, any more than he was with the late Ministry, so he is going to try to enter Parliament again, and there will probably be a triangular duel between the Conservatives, the moderate Reformers who are now in, and the ultra Radicals, or Grits, of whom Mr. BROWN is the chief.

I now close, aware that warlike movements down South are far more interesting to your readers than political intrigues here.

PERSONAL.

—Twenty-five citizens of Manchester, N. H., set sail from Portsmouth on Monday last, in a yacht. Intending to have a fishing excursion on the Coast of Maine. Some of their townsmen, who could not go with them, determined to have a little fun at their expense, so they telegraphed to the United States authorities at Portsmouth to keep a sharp look-out for a party of skedaddlers who were about leaving that place secretly on a secret excursion. As the yacht was bowling merrily from Fort McClesary, she was brought to most unceremoniously by a shot across her bows, and a boat, with an armed crew, put out and brought the whole party ashore. For a time there was any amount of swearing, although the oath of allegiance was not taken, and several of the gentlemen became so obstreperous at the suspicions cast upon their loyalty, that it was found necessary to order them under close confinement. The champagne bottles had to suffer when the joke was explained, but the officers of the fort would not release their prisoners until they had furnished $1,000 bonds for their appearance.

—Major Henry B. McIlvaine, of the Fifth New-York Heavy Artillery, on Monday received orders to proceed forthwith to Harper's Ferry, where he is to act as chief of artillery. Major McIlvaine, for some time past, has been acting as Provost Marshal at Fort McHenry, and before leaving was commended by Gen. Morris, commanding the post.

—Horace Maynard, of Tennessee, was serenaded a few nights ago at West Randolph, Vt., and made a strong war speech, urging rapid enlistments. He has appointments to speak in all the leading towns in Vermont.

—Dr. J. C. Holland, a prominent Secessionist of Memphis, and Commissary-General of Brig.-Gen. W. H. Carroll's command, has been captured, and taken to the city where he formerly resided.

—Brig.-Gen. H. G. Berry is making a brief visit to his home in Rockland, Maine. The citizens turned out en masse and gave him a cordial reception upon his arrival.

Reports of Count C. Kiss for Treason—He is Committed to Fort Lafayette.

A telegram was received from Washington, yesterday, directing the Marshal to arrest Mr. JOHN C. KISS, of No. 77 Bedford-street, and commit him to Fort Lafayette. This is the man who was arrested a fortnight ago, on a charge made by some of the workmen of the machine-shop in which he is foreman, but who was subsequently honorably discharged on the representations of Mr. WOODWARD, the proprietor of the shop, and others, that he was a loyal citizen. What new information the War Department has received to warrant his arrest the Marshal is not advised. Mr. KISS was sent to Fort Lafayette, yesterday, in compliance with the order.

Arrival of the Crew of the Ladona.

Lieut. C. H. GREENE, of the Crusader, which arrived here from Port Royal yesterday, brought ashore his charge twenty-four persons, composing the crew of the prize steamer Ladona, which was sent to Philadelphia. The arrival of the prisoners was reported to the United States Marshal, who will take them from the Crusader this morning and forward them to Philadelphia.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

THE VICTIMS OF THE BEEKMAN-STREET FIRE—Coroner NAUMANN held an inquest yesterday upon the remains of two men, supposed to be those of Messrs. MACKENZIE and SIMMONS, who were burned to death on the morning of the 6th inst., at the time of the fire in Beekman-street. It will be remembered that two of the guests of the Rainbow Hotel were missed immediately after the fire, and as they could not be accounted for in any other way, the friends of the parties all concurred in the belief that they were suffocated in the burning building. Capt. SQUIRES, of the Second Precinct Police, immediately deputed an officer to attend to the removal of the débris, and, if possible, to recover the remains of the victims. Yesterday they were found, deeply imbedded in the ruins, but so burned and disfigured as to render it impossible to identify them. There can be no doubt, however, as to their being the parties above named. Mr. SIMMONS was a fruit dealer, doing business on the corner of John and Nassau streets. His age was about 35 years. Mr. MACKENZIE was a Scotchman by birth, aged about 75 years. He came to this country about fourteen years ago on account of some family difficulty. He was a gentleman of great literary attainments, having been for a long time one of the principal editors of the Edinburgh Quarterly Review, and a contributor to the Encyclopædia Britannica. In addition to this, he was a member of the "Royal Society." In his family relations, he was connected with some of the first of the English nobility. In 1823, Mr. MACKENZIE was sent by his country as a Minister to Mexico, and two years afterward he was appointed Consul-General to Havana, which office he held until about the year 1836, when his connection with England was dissolved by his voluntarily absenting himself from the country. For some time prior to his unfortunate death, he had occupied rooms at the Rainbow Hotel, but usually met his friends at one of the first-class up-town public houses, and consequently there were very few of his numerous friends who knew of his whereabouts. Those who have known him for a score of years say that he was a well-bred gentleman in the true sense of that term,—a man who was always kind, amiable and genial, and that "none knew him but to love him." The Coroner's Jury rendered a verdict in both of the above cases—"Death from accidental burning at the Rainbow Hotel on the 6th inst."

A SINGULAR EXPLOSION.—Yesterday afternoon Mr. MICHAEL TRAVERS, of No. 93 West Nineteenth-street, was passing along Centre-street, and when opposite the iron-works of Messrs. CORBELL & Co., he stopped to strike a match upon the head of an empty barrel, for the purpose of lighting his cigar. The moment the match was struck upon the barrel, an explosion equal to that of a six-pounder occurred, startling every person in the vicinity, and causing men, women and children to run into the streets in the greatest confusion and alarm. The head of the barrel was thrown out with great force, and on its way it struck Mr. TRAVERS upon the right hand and arm, causing injuries so serious that he was conveyed to the New-York Hospital for treatment. In the space of ten minutes from the time of the explosion, there were at least 2,000 people gathered in the vicinity of the exploded barrel, all wondering, and all speculating upon the cause which had produced a result so unexpected and unaccountable. The mystery was soon solved, however, when it was ascertained that the empty cask had contained "benzine oil," and that it had been standing in the sun for several hours, with a small quantity of the highly combustible fluid oozing through the pores of the wood. Mr. TRAVERS'S injuries, though serious, are not believed by his attendant physicians to be fatal.

CULPABLE CARELESSNESS.—DANIEL CUNNINGHAM, a well-known "sport" of this City, went yesterday with a female friend into TAYLOR'S saloon, on Broadway, for the purpose of ordering some refreshments. While quietly seated at a table, a pistol fell from one of CUNNINGHAM'S pockets and exploded, the contents entering the woman's arm and badly lacerating it. Consternation seized all in the saloon, but as it was an evident accident no arrest was made. A physician was called, the wound was dressed, and the crowd dispersed.

DEATHS OF SOLDIERS.—The following is the list of sick and wounded soldiers who have died at the Bellevue Hospital during the week: Second Lieut. C. E. JONES, Company E, First Berdan's Sharpshooters; Private GILBERT C. BABCOCK, Company H, Eighty-first New-York Volunteers; Private FREDRICK FAY, Company —, Seventh Pennsylvania Volunteers; Private JOHN ACKLEY, Company —, Fourth Michigan Volunteers; Private GEO. C. BRESSLAND, Company E, Tenth Massachusetts Volunteers.

SERIOUSLY STABBED.—Mr. OSWALD ADLER, of No. 261 Third-street, was assaulted and stabbed early yesterday morning, by HERMAN BOHM. There were three distinct wounds in the back, which are pronounced to be very serious. The offender was arrested and committed to await the result. Bohm says he is a soldier out on a furlough.

LOST OVERBOARD—Aug. 13, from the bark Trans, just arrived from Beaufort, N. C., and while at anchor off the Battery, WILLIAM LAWRENCE, a seaman, while at work on the jibboom. Every effort was made to save him, but he sunk at once. Apparently, he was taken with a fit, or was injured in falling.

CHARITABLE.—A Canadian gentleman, named GARRETT DEWEY, who applied to Deputy Provost-Marshal GARDNIER, yesterday, to have a passport viséd, took occasion to leave with that official the sum of $5 for the benefit of sick and wounded soldiers.

VESSELS SOLD AT AUCTION.—Messrs. BURDETT, JONES & Co., sold by auction, yesterday, the following vessels: Bark Fetch, for $9,100; bark Pilgrim, $4,600; ship Eagle, for $16,350.

BROOKLYN NEWS.

FATAL ACCIDENTS.—A man named EDWARD MILLS was almost instantly killed in the Eagle Mills, at Greenpoint, yesterday, by falling upon a circular saw, which was in motion. Deceased leaves a wife and family.... A boy named CHARLES LEICH, was run over by a farmer's wagon, in Church, near Bushwick-avenue, Wednesday evening, and instantly killed.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS—CHAMBERS.

Before Judge BOSWORTH.

James W. Lingard vs. George L. Fox.—This was an application, on the part of plaintiff, for an order of attachment to issue against the defendant for his alleged violation of an injunction order served upon him on the stage of the Old Bowery Theatre, on the night of Aug. 2. The facts of the case appeared in the statements of counsel on the return day, and were reported in Tuesday's TIMES. The plaintiff now read the affidavit of John Matthews that he served the order personally upon defendant, at the same time saying, "Mr. Fox, I serve you with an injunction—here is the original!" which defendant denied on numerous affidavits of persons who witnessed the transaction. The affidavits were in point blank opposition to each other in every particular, and the Court declared it impossible to gather from them any proof on which to rely in a decision.

Counsel for plaintiff moved for a reference, wherein witnesses might be cross-examined and the real facts of the transaction found out, but the application was resisted on the ground that it is only in a suit for damages in which a reference is necessary and proper, whereas this is merely a proceeding to prosecute for contempt of Court.

The Judge remarked that the Court could arrive at no conclusions until all questions of fact have been established, and he must therefore order a reference to ascertain the time, manner and place of the alleged service of the injunction order, and whether in the opinion of the referee there was any service. Referred, accordingly, to Henry Nicoll, Esq.

Bartholomew O'Connor, for plaintiff; W. Gleason, for defendant.

A Case in Admiralty.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.

Before Judge Betts.

William K. Disdman vs. The Brigantine Joseph Hume and Henry Kenely.—This was an action for the possession of the brigantine Joseph Hume, an English vessel. The libel alleged that the libelant was owner of three-fourths of the vessel, and the defendant, Henry Kenely, owner of one-fourth, and master; that the vessel had recently arrived in this port incumbered with a bottomry bond for some $5,500; that the master brought with him the sum of $1,000 in gold, which fact he had concealed from the libelant; that this money must have been part of the earnings of the ship, or from the bottomry; that the master had rendered incorrect accounts, and refused to deliver up the vessel although demanded.

The answer admitted that the libelant was owner of three-fourths of the vessel, but set up that the vessel was a British vessel and the master an alien and British subject; that the majority owner had no right to the possession of the vessel while in a foreign port, and while the accounts of the voyage were still unsettled.

The answer also denied making any false accounts, and set forth in detail certain transactions and personal ventures of the master, which it was claimed would account for the $1,000. It was also alleged that the vessel was bound to her home port, and in bond to proceed at once to her destination and there deliver her.

The cause was heard upon the pleadings alone, and a decree of possession rendered in favor of the libelant with costs.

For libelant, Beebe, Dean & Donohue; for the master, Charles Edwards.

Personal Effects of the Captain of the Memphis.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.

The United States vs. Steamer Memphis.—An order having been made to show cause why a previous order should not be set aside, granting the Captain of the prize steamer Memphis permission to remove certain articles, claimed as his personal effects, from the steamer (a report of which appeared in yesterday's TIMES), the case was called up yesterday by the District Attorney, and no one appearing on the part of Capt. Cruikshank to oppose the motion to set aside, the Court granted a revocation of the order.

THE DRAFT IN NEW-YORK.

An Important Order from Gen. McClellan.

NEW ENROLMENT TO BE MADE.

Counties to be Credited with the Portion of their Quota Raised Since July 2.

Special Regulations for New-York and Brooklyn.

WHO ARE EXEMPT, AND WHO ARE NOT.

ALBANY, Thursday, Aug. 14.

The following General Order has just been issued by the Adjutant-General.

After quoting the order of the War Department, this continued, in previous as follows:

In the event that the whole force called for from this State shall not have been raised by voluntary enlistment when the time when the arrangements for a draft shall have been completed, the deficiency will be made up in accordance with the provisions of the following additional regulations for this State, which are hereby adopted:

First—In ascertaining the number of men to be drafted in the several counties, they will be charged with their quota of the whole force to be raised, and credited with the aggregate number raised since July 2, on account for the old regiments and the new, and the basis for the draft will be for the difference. In order to equalize between towns, the Sanatorial District Commissioners are directed to apportion any deficiency arising in the several counties of their respective districts amongst the towns, by ascertaining the proportion of each town of the quota of the county, and charging them with the difference between such proportion and the number actually raised in each. Having ascertained the deficiency of each town the Committee will make out a list of the same certified by their Secretary or Chairman, a copy of which will be filed in their office, and a duplicate copy of which with the Commissioner of each county, at least seven days before a draft is made. No greater number of men will be drafted in any town than shall equal the deficiency of such town on its quota as the same is to be raised. To enable the Commissioners to comply with this provision, they will cause tickets written or printed on the ballots, in addition to those given in which the person resides, and the number of names drawn for any town shall equal the quota for such town, they will return all ballots drawn subsequently representing residents of such town.

Second—The Supervisors and Assessors of towns, and the Aldermen of New-York and Brooklyn, for the purpose of the provision hereinafter made, together with such citizens thereof, to be appointed by the Commissioners, are hereby charged with the duty of enrolling conscripts to be made of all able-bodied citizens between the ages of 18 and 45 and forty-five years in their respective towns, in accordance with the instructions therefor above ordered. For this purpose they are authorized and directed to examine the enrollment books heretofore filed in the offices of the Town and County Clerks, and to make such alterations and revisions as shall render the lists complete—those of the towns to be kept separate and distinct, and copies thereof to be filed in the office and in the offices of the Sheriffs of their respective counties. The attention of the enrolling officers is called to the fact that persons who have not served their time are liable to be drafted under the provisions of this order. It is especially enjoined on all good citizens to be active in the exercise of furnishing the enrolling officers with the names of all persons in their neighborhoods liable to military duty, and with all other information required of them in perfecting such enrollment, and the enrolling officers are hereby ordered to report all cases in which such information is refused to the Provost-Marshal, or to the Judge Advocate-General of the State, at New-York City.

Third—In the cities of New-York and Brooklyn the enrollment will be made under the direction of the Judge Advocate-General of the State, who will appoint in each election district of the said cities one or more competent enrolling officers. Such officers will proceed, under the direction of the Judge Advocate-General, to enroll all the able-bodied men between the ages of 18 and 45, within their respective districts, in accordance with the regulations and instructions hereinbefore prescribed. Commissioners to superintend the drafting in said cities will be appointed by the Governor, two in the city of Brooklyn and four in the City of New-York, whose respective districts will be defined by the Judge-Advocate-General. A sufficient number of Surgeons will be appointed by the Governor in the said cities to make examination in cases of claims for exemption on account of physical disability.

In addition to the persons stated in the foregoing to be exempt from military duty, the following persons are exempt in this State:

All persons in the army or navy or volunteer force of the United States.

Ministers and preachers of the Gospel.

The Lieutenant-Governor.

Members and officers of the Legislature.

The Secretary of State.

Attorney-General.

Comptroller.

State Engineer and Surveyor.

State Treasurer.

And officers and clerks of the several Departments of the Government of this State, civil and military.

Judges of the several Courts.

Civil and Military Judges of the several Courts of this State.

Justices of the Peace.

Sheriffs.

County Clerks.

Coroners and Constables.

Persons being of the people called Shakers and Quakers.

Professors, Teachers and Students in the several Academies and Common Schools.

Persons honorably discharged from the Army and Navy of the United States.

Commissioned officers of the Militia of this State, who have been honorably discharged after service for the term prescribed by the then existing laws.

The present officers and members of the organized Militia of this State, who are liable to be specially drafted into the service with their respective organizations.

Every Collector of Canal Tolls, and the Clerks of each Collector, not exceeding two, having the Collector's certificate that they are employed by him.

And all Superintendents of Repairs, Lock Tenders, Inspectors of Boats and Weighmasters of the Canals of the State.

Captains or masters of canal-boats, actually engaged in navigating the State canals.

The keepers of every County or State prison, and all persons employed in such prison.

Idiots,

Lunatics,

Paupers,

Habitual drunkards,

And persons convicted of infamous crimes.

The persons above-enumerated shall be exempt from such draft on sufficient evidence being produced to the said Commissioner, or on his personal knowledge that said persons belong to any of the aforesaid classes, but without regard to any memorandum or order of exemption now or hereafter made by the enrolling officer, or any of them, on such rolls.

The following places are hereby designated as the rendezvous for the drafted militia forces of this State, and Commandants for the same will be hereafter appointed:

PLATTSBURGH—For the Counties of Clinton, St. Lawrence, Warren, Essex, Franklin, Hamilton, Jefferson, Lewis and Herkimer.

ALBANY—For the Counties of Albany, Delaware, Otsego, Schoharie, Greene, Schenectady, Montgomery, Columbia, Rensselaer, Washington, Fulton, Saratoga, Oneida and Dutchess.

BINGHAMTON—For the Counties of Broome, Tioga, Otsego, Chenango, Cortland, Tompkins, Chemung, Wayne, Onondaga, Cayuga, Seneca, Ontario, Steuben, Schuyler, Monroe and Yates.

EAST NEW-YORK—ON EAST ISLAND—For New-York City and County, and the Counties of Kings, Queens, Suffolk, Richmond, Westchester, Rockland, Putnam, Orange, Ulster and Sullivan.

BUFFALO—For the Counties of Allegany, Wyoming, Livingston, Monroe, Orleans, Genesee, Niagara, Erie, Cattaraugus and Chautauqua.

Fifth—The persons drafted shall have assembled at the county seat of their respective counties, transportation will be furnished to the place of rendezvous by the Quartermaster, upon the requisition of the County Commissioners.

Sixth—In the organization of the several companies and regiments of the drafted militia, all commissioned officers will be appointed by the Commander-in-Chief, as now provided by sections 23 and 24 of the Militia Law of this State, except where organizations of the present authorized militia are drafted, or shall volunteer, in which case they shall serve under their own officers, all vacancies existing to be filled by appointment by the Commander-in-Chief.

Seventh—It is to be understood that volunteers for the regiments now in the field, and those organized under the recent call for nine months' men, are not to be counted against the quota of any town or county in this State, and that no bounty is to be allowed in this State, except that authorized by the United States, when otherwise provided.

As it will of necessity take some time to perfect the arrangements for the enrollment of men demanded by the Commander-in-Chief, that the intermediate period shall be improved through the State to such a way as to make the aggregate number of volunteers called for, as large as possible. To this end every aid and facility will be afforded by the military authorities of the State, and the success of a District in raising its full quota will do away with the necessity of a draft in such District altogether.

Each portion of the quota of one hundred and twenty thousand men called for from this State as shall be raised by voluntary enlistments before the draft is made, will be formed into regiments, except such number of companies as may be required to fill up regiments from this State now in the service. If a sufficient number of companies shall not volunteer for this purpose, the deficiency will be made up by assigning other companies, with their officers, from the number organized in the several Districts; provided, however, that no District shall be required to furnish a greater number of volunteers for the old regiments than its proportion of the whole number required.

Authorizations will be granted as heretofore on the recommendation of the District Committees up to the limit of the quotas of the several districts, the present camps being continued, and new commandants appointed when the regiments now organizing shall have been completed and placed in service.

NOTE.—The quotas of the several Counties and Districts, on the basis of the Census of 1860, are as follows:

ORDERS FROM THE WAR DEPARTMENT.

Important Additional Regulations Regarding the Draft—It will Positively Commence on the First of September.

HARRISBURGH, Pa., Thursday, Aug. 14.

The following order has just been received by the Governor:

ORDERED—First—That after the 15th day of this month bounty and advance pay shall not be paid to volunteers for any new regiments, but only to volunteers for regiments now in the field, and volunteers to fill up new regiments now organizing, but not yet full.

Second—Volunteers to fill up new regiments now organizing will be received and paid the bounty and advance pay until the 22d day of this month, and if not completed by that time, incomplete regiments will be consolidated, and superfluous officers mustered out.

Third—Volunteers to fill up old regiments will be received and paid bounty and advance pay till the 1st day of September.

Fourth—The draft for three hundred thousand militia called for by the President will be made on Monday the 5th day of September, between the hours of 9 and 9 A. M. and 4 and 5 o'clock P. M. and continue from day to day, between the same hours, until completed.

Fifth—If the old regiments should not be filled up with volunteers before the first day of September, a special draft will be ordered for the deficiency.

Sixth—Exigencies of the service require that officers now in the field should remain with their commands, and no officer, now in the field, in the regular or volunteer service, will, under any circumstances, be detailed to accept a new command.

By order of the President.

EDWIN M. STANTON, Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, Aug. 14.

The following additional regulations for the enrollment of draft of the militia were issued today:

ORDERED—Eighth: That in filling all requisitions for militia, the quotas of the several States will be apportioned by the Governors among the several counties, and where practicable among the sub-divisions of counties, so that allowance shall be made to such counties and sub-divisions of counties for all volunteers heretofore furnished by them and mustered into the service of the United States, and whose stipulated term of service shall not have expired.

EDWIN M. STANTON, Secretary of War.

MILITARY MATTERS IN THE CITY.

PROGRESS OF ENLISTMENTS.

Though very little excitement is now displayed about the matter, recruiting goes steadily and encouragingly on. Men who have situations or are in business for themselves will not volunteer, but of the actual deed of enlistment will be last possible moment; but these are settling up their affairs in large numbers, and may be expected to come forward with alacrity before the week is over. The floating element which is to be found in a great city has been nearly absorbed, so far as New-York is concerned, and the chief portion of the enlistments made within the past few days are steady family men, who have a stake in the country, and who join the army from motives of duty and earnest patriotism. They will make the very best class of soldiers.

UNITED STATES MUSTERING-OFFICE.

The returns from this office show a constantly increasing influx of recruits for the regiments in the field. During the week nearly 600 volunteers for those regiments have been enrolled, this number not including any of those recruited for new regiments. About 150 men have joined the Irish Brigade within two days. Colonel Brigade is getting along still better, while Duryee's Zouaves and the Seventy-ninth Highlanders are ahead of all competitors. Forty-five men of the Sickles Brigade, 19 of the Irish Brigade and 31 of the Seventy-ninth have been paid the $10 extra bounty promised from the Produce Exchange. Capt. LAMAN has enough to do in disbursing the Government bounties of which he has the charge, the whole of which are now given to each recruit directly he swears in.

MORE EXTRA BOUNTY.

The Twenty-first Ward Volunteer Association are making arrangements to pay $10 to every recruit who may enlist under their auspices. The office of the Association is at No. 368 Fourth-street. The Fifth Senatorial District Committee on Enlistments, [illegible] recently for that purpose, [illegible] to obtain.

REGRETS AND CONVALESCENTS.

Some two hundred soldiers who have returned from sickness or wounds were, yesterday, discharged from the City to the seat of war. A great many lately enlisted recruits were also sent forward for regiments in the field; among others, over 200 belonging to the Twenty-first, Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth, Twenty-fifth and Twenty-seventh Massachusetts Regiments, now at Newbern.

FOURTH SENATORIAL DISTRICT REGIMENT.

Though this regiment has not been heard very prominently before the public, it is getting along capitally. Its commander is Col. FRANK MCDAMMON, an officer who has seen service and obtained considerable popularity. There is a temporary hitch between the Colonel and the Senatorial District Committee, arising out of the nomination by the former of persons as Adjutant and Quartermaster who are distasteful to the Committee; but this difficulty will most likely be soon settled. The regiment has now about 150 men enrolled. Headquarters in Broadway, near Broome-street.

SIXTH SENATORIAL DISTRICT COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Sixth Senatorial District Committee, held yesterday in the City Hall, FRANK COWLES, Esq., in the chair, the following letter from Gen. HALLECK was read:

WASHINGTON, August 6, 1862.

Professor A. E. Church, West Point:

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 3d is just received. While in the West I gave a leave to every regular officer who could get a volunteer regiment. Heretofore, the policy here has been opposed to this. I have just given orders to the Adjutant-General to give every regular officer a leave who receives the commission of a Volunteer Colonel, and I am satisfied they can do more good at the head of a regiment than with a mere fragment of a company. Yours truly,

H. W. HALLECK.

A letter was received from Col. GUARDE, of the First National Guard, asking the aid of the Committee to enable him to complete his regiment. The subject, after discussion, was laid over, members of the Committee expressing the opinion that their efforts should be confined to raising men for regiments in the field. Resolutions were adopted in favor of Col. J. H. HONAKER WARD'S Ninety-eighth Regiment, and in favor of offering a bounty of $10 to all volunteers enlisting in the Sixth District. The Committee adjourned to next Monday.

THE MONITORS.

The success of the Monitors astonishes everybody. Capt. HOWLAND'S company was filled in three days. A second company, to be commanded by Capt. Geo. W. COOPER, Finance Clerk of the Board of Education, was organized yesterday, and 20 names were enrolled. Premiums for opportunities to enroll in the first company were yesterday offered and refused. It is expected that the second company will be full this week. Headquarters, No. 308 Broadway.

THE IRISH BRIGADE.

Under the management of Col. NUGENT, ably assisted by the indefatigable Capt. LAMAY, of the Sixty-ninth, and other officers of the brigade, recruiting goes on famously at the head recruiting office, No. 308 Broadway. To-morrow it, doubtless, will be on the increase, for an additional gratuity or bounty of $10 per man was, yesterday, offered for the next fifty recruits by Messrs. AUSTIN, KELLY & Co., skirt manufacturers, No. 258 Canal-street. These gentlemen also kindly and generously promise to give employment to the families of such soldiers during their absence at the war, an offer which might be beneficially emulated. The correspondence on this subject will probably be published to-morrow. One hundred and fifty fully uniformed recruits for the brigade now await the promised bounty and transportation to the army of Gen. McCLELLAN, for which, it is hoped, they will receive by noon to-morrow.

ARRESTING DESERTERS.

The Police continue to arrest numbers of deserters. All rewards are now paid by Col. HOWE on presentation of the receipt of the commanding officer of the station for the delivery of the refugees.

MILITARY MATTERS IN BROOKLYN.

Several of the leading men of this city have been aroused from their Rip Van Winkle sleep, and have issued the following call for a war meeting:

KINGS COUNTY AROUSE!!!

The citizens of Kings County, wishing to avoid a draft and to encourage volunteering, are invited to meet at the City Hall, Brooklyn, on Friday evening, Aug. 15, 1862, at 8 o'clock precisely, to consult and take measures as to the best means to accomplish the above results:

MARTIN KALBFLEISCH,	A. W. BENSON,
S. S. POWELL,	M. F. ODELL,
CORNELIS BROES,	JAS. HUMPHREY,
ISAAC VAN ANDEN,	ANTHONY F. CAMPBELL,
D. D. SELLEMAN,	PHILLIP S. CHOATE,
SAMUEL SLOAN,	JOHN H. FURE,
J. S. T. STRANAHAN,	DENAS STRONG,
D. D. WHITNEY,	—and many others.

Officer EVANS, of the Forty-fourth Precinct, yesterday arrested RICHARD GRAHAM, charged with having aided a deserter to escape from the custody of that officer while going to Governor's Island. The accused was taken before the Provost-Marshal to be disposed of under military law.

THE DRAFT—APPLICATIONS FOR PASSPORTS AT THE MARSHAL'S OFFICE.

Applications continue to be made at the United States Marshal's office for passes to go to this and that place. To save further annoyance of this kind, the Marshal desires a repetition of the information, which has already been repeatedly published, that no passes are required for traveling to any part of the United States with the exception of California. Beyond these limits, which are large enough to satisfy any reasonable traveler, a passport will be required; if the applicant is a foreigner it can be obtained from the British Consul, and will be viséd by the United States Marshal to establish the fact whether the applicant is a citizen or not. A declaration of intention to become a citizen, even though the person has not been naturalized, will prevent his leaving the country. About thirty passports, issued by the British Consul, were viséd by the Marshal yesterday. It may be of interest to state that the Consul, yesterday, raised the price of passports from $2 to $3.

SIXTH SENATORIAL DISTRICT COMMITTEE.

NEW-YORK, Thursday, Aug. 14, 1862.

At a meeting of this Committee, held at the City Hall, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That in view of the distinguished services of the Thirty-eighth Regiment, (Scott Life Guard,) Col. WARD, in the battles in Virginia, an earnest appeal be made to the liberal citizens of New-York to contribute means for recruiting that regiment to its proper standard; and that the Committee for this District will receive and apply funds for that purpose. The Committee will also apply means placed at their disposal in aid of other regiments, whenever so requested by the donors.

JOHN J. BRADLEY, Chairman.

DAVID R. JAQUES, Secretary.

RENSSELAER COUNTY AROUSED.

ENLISTMENTS GOING ON RAPIDLY—NO NEED OF DRAFTING.

TROY, N. Y., Thursday, Aug. 14.

Capt. WM. DIMOND, of Stephentown, a highly respectable farmer, left that place with his company, numbering eighty men, yesterday morning, to join the Rensselaer County Regiment, quartered near this City. Twenty-eight men, principally farmers sons, were added to the company on its march of eighteen miles to this city, making 108 in all.

The Rensselaer County Regiment already numbers 800 men, and will be fully completed by to-morrow.

Enlistments are going on with the greatest rapidity. The people everywhere are aroused, and there will be no necessity of drafting.

The regiments from this city will be composed entirely of brawny, healthy men.

The Rensselaer County Regiment is one of the finest body of troops ever recruited anywhere.

THE ONANDAGA COUNTY REGIMENT.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Thursday, Aug. 14.

The Third Onandaga Regiment is full, having enlisted 1,042 men, of whom about 800 have been mustered into the service, and the remainder are being mustered as rapidly as possible.

THE PENNSYLVANIA TROOPS.

HARRISBURGH, Thursday, Aug. 14.

Gov. CURTIN's mission to Washington has proved entirely successful, as the additional regulation order, No. 8, for the enrollment and draft of militia, which has just been received, will show.

Gen. WOOD and several of his aide are here, rendering valuable assistance in the formation of regiments. One regiment leaves Lancaster to-morrow morning, fully armed and equipped, for the seat of war. Several other regiments will leave here to-morrow, and from present appearances, Pennsylvania will have fifteen regiments in the field within a week. Others are rapidly forming.

THE PRESIDENT AND COLONIZATION.

Interesting Interview with a Committee of Colored Men.

Speech of the President in Favor of Colonization.

The Experiment to be Tried in Central America.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, Aug. 14.

This afternoon the President of the United States gave audience to a Committee of colored men at the White House. They were introduced by Rev. J. MITCHELL, Commissioner of Emigration. E. M. THOMAS, the Chairman, remarked that they were there by invitation, to hear what the Executive had to say to them.

Having all been seated, the President, after a few preliminary observations, informed them that a sum of money had been appropriated by Congress, and placed at his disposition, for the purpose of aiding the colonization in some country of the people, or a portion of them, of African descent, thereby making it his duty, as it had for a long time been his inclination, to favor that cause; and why, he asked, should the people of your race be colonized, and where? Why should they leave this country? This is, perhaps, the first question for proper consideration. You and we are different races. We have between us a broader difference than exists between almost any other two races. Whether it is right or wrong I need not discuss; but this physical difference is a great disadvantage to us both, as I think. Your race suffer very greatly many of them, by living among us, while ours suffer from your presence. In a word, we suffer on each side. If this is admitted, it affords a reason, at least, why we should be separated. You, here, are freemen, I suppose.

A VOICE—Yes, Sir.

The PRESIDENT—Perhaps you have long been free, or all your lives. Your race are suffering, in my judgment, the greatest wrong inflicted on any people. But even when you cease to be slaves you are yet far removed from being placed on an equality with the white race. You are cut off from many of the advantages which the other race enjoys. The aspiration of men is to enjoy equality with the best when free, but on this broad continent not a single man of your race is made the equal of a single man of ours. Go where you are treated the best, and the ban is still upon you. I do not propose to discuss this, but to present it as a fact, with which we have to deal. I cannot alter it if I would. It is a fact about which we all think and feel alike, I and you. We look to our condition. Owing to the existence of the two races on this continent, I need not recount to you the effects upon white men, growing out of the institution of Slavery. I believe in its general evil effects on the white race. See our present condition—the country engaged in war! our white men cutting one another's throats—none knowing how far it will extend—and then consider what we knew to be the truth. But for your race among us there could not be war, although many men engaged on either side, do not care for you one way or the other. Nevertheless, I repeat, without the institution of Slavery, and the colored race as a basis, the war could not have an existence. It is better for us both, therefore, to be separated. I know that there are free men among you who, even if they could better their condition, are not as much inclined to go out of the country as those who, being slaves, could obtain their freedom on this condition. I suppose one of the principal difficulties in the way of colonization is that the free colored man cannot see that his comfort would be advanced by it. You may believe that you can live in Washington, or elsewhere in the United States, the remainder of your life; perhaps more so than you can in any foreign country, and hence you may come to the conclusion that you have nothing to do with the idea of going to a foreign country. This is (I speak in no unkind sense) an extremely selfish view of the case. But you ought to do something to help those who are not so fortunate as yourselves. There is an unwillingness on the part of our people, harsh as it may be, for you free colored people to remain with us. Now if you could give a start to the white people you would open a wide door for many to be made free. If we deal with those who are not free at the beginning, and whose intellects are clouded by Slavery, we have very poor material to start with. If intelligent colored men, such as are before me, would move in this matter, much might be accomplished. It is exceedingly important that we have men at the beginning capable of thinking as white men, and not those who have been systematically oppressed. There is much to encourage you. For the sake of your race you should sacrifice something of your present comfort for the purpose of being as grand in that respect as the white people. It is a cheering thought throughout life that something can be done to ameliorate the condition of those who have been subject to the hard usages of the world. It is difficult to make a man miserable while he feels he is worthy of himself, and claims kindred to the great God who made him. In the American Revolutionary War sacrifices were made by men engaged in it, but they were cheered by the future. Gen. WASHINGTON himself endured greater physical hardships than if he had remained a British subject, yet he was a happy man, because he was engaged in benefiting his race; something for the children of his neighbors, having none of his own.

The Colony of Liberia has been in existence a long time. In a certain sense it is a success. The old President of Liberia, ROBERTS, has just been with me the first time I ever saw him. He says they have within the bounds of that colony between three and four hundred thousand people, or more than in some of our old States, such as Rhode Island or Delaware, or in some of our newer States, and less than in some of our larger ones. They are not all American colonists, or their descendants. Something less than 12,000 have been sent thither from this country. Many of the original settlers have died, yet, like people elsewhere, their offspring outnumber those deceased. The question is, if the colored people are persuaded to go anywhere, why not there? One reason for an unwillingness to do so is that some of you would rather remain within reach of the country of your nativity. I do not know how much attachment you may have toward our race. It does not strike me that you have the greatest reason to love them. But still you are attached to them at all events. The place I am thinking about having for a colony is in Central America. It is nearer to us than Liberia—not much more than one-fourth as far as Liberia, and within seven days run by steamers. Unlike Liberia, it is on a great line of travel—it is a highway. The country is a very excellent one for any people, and with great natural resources and advantages, and especially because of the similarity of climate with your native land, thus being suited to your physical condition. The particular place I have in view is to be a great highway from the Atlantic, or Carribean Sea, to the Pacific Ocean, and this particular place has all the advantages for a colony. On both sides there are harbors among the first in the world. Again, there is evidence of very rich coal mines. A certain amount of coal is valuable in any country, and there may be more than enough for the wants of the country. Why I attach so much importance to coal is, it will afford an opportunity to the inhabitants for immediate employment till they get ready to settle permanently in their homes. If you take colonists where there is no good landing, there is a bad show, and as where there is nothing to cultivate, and of which to make a farm. But if something is started so that you can get your daily bread as soon as you reach there, it is a great advantage. Coal land is the best thing I know of with which to commence an enterprise. To return—you have been talked to upon this subject, and told that a speculation is intended by gentlemen who have an interest in the country, including the coal mines. We have been mistaken all our lives if we do not know whites, as well as blacks, look to their self-interest. Unless money flows freely you can't make them move. You look with these things here and elsewhere. If such persons have what will be an advantage in them, the question is, whether it cannot be made of advantage to you? You are intelligent, and know that manner does not so much depend on external help as on self-reliance. Much, therefore, depends upon yourselves. As to the coal mines, I think I see the means available for your self-reliance. I shall, if I get a sufficient number of you engaged, have provision made that you shall not be wronged. If you will engage in the enterprise, I will spend some of the money intended to go, I am not sure you will succeed. The Government may lose the money, but we cannot succeed unless we try; but we think with care we can succeed. The political status in Central America are not in quite as satisfactory condition as I wish. There are contending factions in that quarter; but it is true all the factions are agreed alike on the subject of colonization, and want it, and are more generous than we are here. To your colored race they have no objection. Besides, I would endeavor to have you made equals, and have the best assurance that you should be the equals of the best. The practical thing I want to ascertain is, whether I can get a number of able-bodied men, with their wives and children, who are willing to go, when I present evidence of encouragement and protection. Could I get a hundred intelligent men with their wives and children, and "cut their own fodder," so to speak? Can I have fifty? If I could find twenty-five able-bodied men, with a mixture of women and children—good things in the family relation, I think—I could make a successful commencement. I want you to let me know whether this can be done or not. This is the practical part of my wish to see you. These are subjects of very great importance—worthy of a month's study, of a speech delivered in an hour. I ask you, then, to consider seriously, not pertaining to yourselves merely, nor for your race and ours for the present time, but as one of the things, if successfully managed, for the good of mankind—not confined to the present generation, but as—

"From age to age descends the lay
To millions yet to be,
Till far its echoes roll away
Into eternity."

The above is merely given as the substance of the President's remarks.

The Chairman of the delegation briefly replied that "they would hold a consultation and in a short time give an answer." The President said, "Take your full time—no hurry at all."

The delegation then withdrew.

Twenty-six Rebel Prisoners Shot at Macon City—Twelve Others to Suffer a Similar Fate.

By the same authority, we learn that twelve other paroled rebel prisoners will probably suffer a similar fate this morning.

TENNESSEE AND KENTUCKY.

Surprise of the Guerrillas at Gallatin—Reported Skirmishing in the Vicinity of Bowling Green.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Wednesday, Aug. 13.

Col. MILLER, commanding this post, left for Gallatin last night with two regiments, and surprised a part of MORGAN'S band, killing six, whereof three were officers—among whom was Capt. W. C. BRECKINRIDGE, (son of Dr. ROBERT J. BRECKINRIDGE,) who joined JOHN MORGAN in his late raid upon Lexington. There was no loss on the National side.

There are various rumors, which cannot be verified to-night, of skirmishes in the vicinity of Bowling Green.

Academy of Music.

BENEFIT FOR THE UNION HOME AND SCHOOL, CORNER OF SEVENTY-FIFTH-STREET AND ELEVENTH-AVENUE.

In conformity with an elaborate programme, the Academy of Music was beautifully decorated with flowers, gaily hung with flags and banners, and mythologically adorned with busts, statues and statuettes. The advertisement promised a feast of fat things in the floral, theatrical, poetical and musical reins, the proceeds pecuniary of which were to be given to the Union Home and School at the corner of Seventy-fifth-street and Eleventh-avenue, where the children of our dead soldiers are tutored and maintained. A very fair audience gathered to witness the performances, which being almost entirely unprofessional, were interesting and instructive to the old and young.

The tableaux were more than good. Miss MARY ANNE CARNEY's recital of "O'Conhor's Child" was received with hearty applause. Miss VIRGINIA FIRZINE's song, "Soldier's Tear," drew many another from the eyes of the audience, and everything was served. The pecuniary result to the Home, we should think, would be quite a desirable one.
